AN OBJECTIONABLE AMENDMENT

A Republican Senator Compliments Whitney's Administration.

THE SMALLS-ELLIOTT CONTEST

Contestant Appears Before the House and Makes a Statement—The Seal Fisheries of Behring Sea—The Tariff Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Among the senate bills reported from committees and placed on the calendar was one to provide for the enforcement of quarantine laws, and for the establishment of a national board of health.

The following house bill was taken from the calendar and passed: Granting the right of way to the Pima Land & Water Company across the Fort Lowell military reservation in Arizona.

The senate then proceeded to executive business. Within five minutes the executive business was transacted and legislative business was resumed.

Evarts gave notice that as soon as the naval appropriation bill was disposed of he would ask the senate to consider the resolution reported from the committee on privileges and elections as to the outrages in Washington county, Texas, and directing that committee to revise the existing laws regarding the election of members of congress.

The senate then resumed consideration of the naval appropriation bill, the pending question being on Chandler's amendment to strike out the words requiring a new cruising monitor to be constructed under the plans and specifications of Thomas of Illinois.

Chandler continued his argument in support of the amendment. His understanding was that Thomas had merely enumerated certain ideas as the desideratum in the ship, and that naval officers now in the employment of the government made all the designs, plans and specifications. He thought it altogether wrong to put such a provision in the appropriation bill, but if anybody was to be recognized in this manner it should be the men who had taken the ideas and designed the ship.

Finally the clause was made to read as follows: "One armored steel cruising monitor of a type approved and recommended by the naval board in their report to the secretary of the navy and by him referred to and approved in his letter to the chairman of the committee on naval affairs of the house of representatives, dated January 9, 1889, to be constructed according to plans and specifications furnished by the navy department, to be approved by the secretary of the navy."

Cullom said that Thomas had devoted a good deal of labor and attention, but that he had done so for the public good and not from any ambition to be especially identified by name with the ship, and yet he (Cullom) had a private letter in his pocket from a gentleman who had done clerical work in getting up the plans and specifications giving the entire credit of the invention to Thomas.

[illegible] complimented the present administration of the navy department. He was glad to say in the closing days of the administration that the navy department had been well administered, not only in the sense that there had been a stimulus given so far as could be given by executive direction to everything that went to the upbuilding of the navy, to the procuring of the best type of ships and to the stimulation of the highest form of manufactures, but more than all that to the encouragement of the individual genius of the people and to the doing of the work not in the navy yards, where political considerations might have influence, but in private yards.

He was glad to say that during the past four years the navy department had been administered in a practical, level-headed, judicious way. The result was that, quoting the remark made to him by Hale, he was prepared to believe that within ten years the United States would have the best navy in the world—not the strongest navy, not a navy with the most ships, not a navy with the greatest variety of ships, but a navy with the most modern ships, with ships best adapted to the work they would have to do.

Hale said the foundations for a good navy had been well laid under the administration of the department by Chandler. Under Chandler's administration the old plan of spending large sums of money in repairing old wooden ships had been abandoned. Simultaneously with that policy, which Chandler had pressed upon congress in season and out of season, the foundations for the construction of a new navy under modern methods to meet modern and present exigencies had been laid. As a result the work had been entered upon of building the Dolphin, Boston, Atlanta and Chicago, and when the present administration came in it had found those ships in process of construction, with provisions made for other ships. Much of the success which had characterized the present administration of the navy department, to which he was glad to bear testimony, had been owing to the holding up of the secretary's hands by the majority of the senate, which was opposed to him in politics. The secretary had been careful in his methods, he had encouraged American inventions, American enterprise and American skill, and now the United States had some of the best ships that were to be found to-day on the waters of the globe.

An amendment was adopted appropriating $50,000 for testing the Hurst gun, and then the bill passed.

A message from the president transmitting a report from the secretary of state as to the seal fisheries of Behring sea was presented, read and referred.

Evarts asked unanimous consent that the unfinished business, the Union Pacific funding bill, be laid aside and the report of the committee on privileges and elections as to the outrages in Washington county, Texas, be taken up.

Coke objected.

Harris remonstrated against occupying the time of the senate at this inopportune and inauspicious period of the session in political discussion.

Sherman supported Evarts's motion, and Morgan remonstrated and declared that if the debate were open the republican senators might as well provide for the incoming president's calling an extra session of congress.

Chandler commented upon Harris's remark as to this being an inauspicious moment for taking up the subject, and said he wondered when a more appropriate time could be selected than one when the process had been commenced in certain states of killing contestants for seats in the house of representatives. He proceeded to speak of the assassination of Clayton in Arkansas.

Berry characterized the killing of Clayton as a cowardly murder, and said that the insinuation that the people of Arkansas were responsible for it directly or indirectly was not true.

The question was then taken upon Evarts's motion to lay aside the Pacific railroad funding bill and to take up the report of the committee, and it was agreed to by a party vote of 22 to 19.

The resolution accompanying the report was read, being as follows:

Resolved, That the committee on privileges and elections be directed carefully to revise the existing laws regulating the election of members of congress, with a view of providing for a more complete protection of the exercise of the elective franchise and for the punishment of offenses against it, and to report at the next legislative session of the senate by bill or otherwise.

Harris then came forward with another suggestion. It was that in order to economize time and to avoid an irritating section of debate the vote be taken at once (and without discussion) on the adoption of the resolution.

Evarts said he should be glad to keep the debate within bounds, but thought it right that the committee which reported the resolution should be permitted to lay before the senate the grounds on which the resolution was based. It would be optional with the senators on the other side to reply or not.

Adjourned.

CONSIDERING NOMINATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—In executive session in the senate this afternoon the committee on agriculture favorably reported the nomination of Norman J. Colman to the secretary of agriculture. Objection was made by republican senators to the consideration at this time, and the democratic senators then objected to the discussion of the nomination, and under the rule it went over until the next executive session. It is understood that the nomination will be confirmed, however, when it again comes up before the senate.

The nomination of Assistant Secretary Thompson of the Treasury to be civil service commissioner in place of Edgerton, and that of First Assistant Postmaster General Stevenson to be judge of the supreme court of the District of Columbia will be subject to the general rule adopted by a majority of the senate respecting political nominations. The objection to Stevenson is said to lie in the fact that his nomination is in violation of the republican doctrine concerning territorial offices, that they shall be filled by residents of the territory. Thompson is objected to on the score of extreme offensive partisanship in South Carolina.

THE CONTESTED ELECTION CASE.

Smalls Appears Before the House and Makes His Statement.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—In the house the senate bill to enable the president to protect the interests of the United States in Panama was referred to the committee on foreign affairs, and leave was granted the committee to report at any time.

The house then resumed consideration of the Smalls-Elliott contested election case.

A long political discussion as to the rights and wrongs of the Southern electors in this district, and particularly of the political status of the negro in the South, ensued, the chief speech being made by O'Ferrall of Virginia, and participated in by Rowe of Illinois, Kerr of Iowa and others. After the talk had been in progress some hours the question of limiting the debate came up and the limit was fixed at six hours for each side, including the time already occupied.

Johnston (Indiana) said that twenty-eight years ago a gentleman from Virginia (O'Ferrall) and his associates told the Southern people that they could come up North and whip a dozen Yankees at least before breakfast, and now they were holding up their hands and crying out to Almighty God to protect them from a few colored people in the South. He warned the majority against setting the precedent advocated by that committee, and served a notice upon the democrats that the republicans were here to stay until the principle had been established in this country that every man, white or black, might cast an honest vote and have it fairly counted.

THE CONTESTANT'S STATEMENT.

After further debate by McComas of Maryland and Outhwaite of Ohio, contestant Smalls was accorded the floor to advocate his claims. He said it was true that he had been arrested in 1888, charged by the democrats with receiving a bribe in 1873. He was innocent of that charge. He had been [illegible] pending an appeal to the United States supreme court [illegible] without [illegible] directly had granted him a pardon. Reviewing the case he commented on the fact that though in South Carolina every [illegible] was a democrat, not a man had been brought to count for all this bulldozing and intimidation which had been charged. The gentlemen on the other side should examine the record, and if they came to the conclusion that he had not been honestly and quietly elected, let them be honest in their convictions and vote against him. It was said that he was an unpopular man and that his vote had fallen off, but the management of getting votes into the box had fallen off too. He (Smalls) had lost his popularity because when there were 600 republican votes in the precinct the clerk put [illegible] names on the poll desk and the surplus voters were drawn out. He supposed he would have to go when the vote was taken to-morrow. He would go good naturedly, but he would be up again next year and would see some of the gentlemen going out too.

Pending further debate the senate bill was passed authorizing the Cheyenne Street Railroad company to construct a road across the D. A. Russell military reservation. Adjourned.

OUR SEAL FISHERIES.

The Official Correspondence Transmitted to the Senate by President Cleveland.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—In January last the senate adopted a resolution asking the president to communicate all correspondence with Great Britain respecting the right of fishing for seal or navigating in Behring sea, the circumstances regarding the seizure or release of any British vessels by the United States, and the regulations concerning the taking of seal, and whether or not any such regulations are enforced against citizens or vessels of the United States and not against the citizens or vessels of other countries.

In response to this President Cleveland to-day transmitted to the senate a mass of manuscript which has been prepared at the state department.

Secretary Bayard in a note to the president accompanying the correspondence says: "As heretofore announced to congress, negotiations are pending with a view to the protection of seal life in Behring sea by an international arrangement."

Some of the correspondence of a confidential character and as yet incomplete is withheld, but none of it has any relation to the orders given regulating the seizure of vessels engaged in sealing in Behring sea. The correspondence tells the well known story of the seizure of British vessels and their sale after a protest by their owners which was received too late.

The correspondence relative to the conclusion of treaties for the protection of fur seals in Behring sea includes the instructions sent by Bayard to our ministers to France, Germany, Great Britain, Japan, Russia and Sweden and Norway. To this the governments of France, Great Britain, Russia and Japan gave a favorable response, but Sweden and Norway declined to take part because its people were not engaged or interested in seal fishing.

In a letter to Secretary Bayard dated February 1, 1887, Secretary Fairchild says: "I enclose herewith three copies of the compilation published in 1882, which contains all the standing rules and regulations relating to said fishing or taking of seal.

"No instructions of a general and permanent character in regard to the subject have been issued since that date."

THE TARIFF BILL.

Completion of the Majority Report of the Ways and Means Committee.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The democratic members of the committee on ways and means have practically completed their report on the senate amendments to the tariff bill. To-night or to-morrow morning the republican members of the committee will be supplied with copies of the majority report for their assistance in preparing a minority report if they should decide to make one.

Layman's High License Bill Is Now Ready for the Governor

LIVELY DEBATES IN THE SENATE

That Body Passes the Supreme Court Bill and Hatch's Normal School Measure—The House in Favor of Portage Railways

SALEM, Feb. 12.—As soon as the house was called to order and the reading of the journal dispensed with, the committee on commerce asked and was granted leave to report back to the house Northup's pilotage bill.

"This is a very important bill to the whole state," said Mr. Thompson, chairman of the commerce committee, "and I now move that the rules be suspended and the bill placed on its final passage."

The motion carried and the clerk then read the bill as originally introduced.

Mr. Northup then addressed the house in behalf of the bill. He explained the changes which the present bill would make in the law as it now stands. It provides that the pilot commissioners, who are elected by the legislature, may reside anywhere in the state instead of compelling two of them to live at Astoria; does not limit the number of pilots, but permits any who are capable to have a license and engage in the business; permits tugboats to carry pilots, and fixes the compensation at $4 per foot draft and 2 cents a ton for each ton over 1000 tons.

Hahn of Astoria spoke in opposition to the bill, saying it was introduced in the interests of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company. He closed by saying: "Do you want to make white men work for Chinamen's wages? If you do, vote for this bill."

Thompson replied that it was not merely a question of protecting pilots, but the commerce of the state. He read the statement of the reduction of charges upon the commerce of the Columbia river which would be brought about by the passage of this bill and [illegible]. "I hope the bill will pass by a unanimous vote."

Lowell spoke briefly but forcibly in support of the bill. Conlon of Lane made a long speech in opposition to its passage. He [illegible] his argument by referring to statements made to him by lobbyists from Astoria and by reading paragraphs from the so-called report of the Oregon bar pilots. He also read the following affidavits:

I, J. E. Campbell, being first duly sworn, depose and say: That I am the manager of the bar pilots residing at Astoria, Oregon; that on the 20th day of [illegible] 1888 I was in Portland and held an interview with W. H. Holcomb in the office of the O. R. & N. company; that Mr. Holcomb asked [illegible] legislative action on the pilotage question.

Absent—Herbst, Williamson—

The pilotage bill came up in the senate this afternoon and, aided by a few forcible remarks by Watts, was read twice by title and made a special order of business for 10 A. M. Thursday. There had been much opposition to considering house bills out of order, and when the bill was announced Carson, to pave the way, said it was a measure in which the whole state was interested, and he moved to take it up and read it by title.

Gray hoped it would not be forced through the senate as it was through the house, and Watkins hoped the motion would not prevail.

Wager said it was an important measure and favored giving it a show.

"It's an important question," said Watts, "and if one half of what it contains is true the whole state of Oregon demands that it shall be railroaded through this senate. The state is injured every day by its products being compelled to go to Puget sound. This bill relieves the people of a great burden, and my mind is made up as to how I shall vote. The people demand that something shall be done that they shall be able to get their products to Astoria as cheaply as to Puget sound. There is not a more important bill on the calendar than this one, in which the people of the whole state are interested. The people come here year after year and will keep coming until some relief is afforded."

Gray called Watts to order during his remarks, but the chair decided that what he was saying was pertinent.

Gray then started in to say something, and began by alluding to the action of the senate in adjourning two years ago after he had gone to the trouble of preparing a speech and distributing it, and had commenced to deliver it. "If the senate had listened to my remarks two years ago—"

That was all he had said when Watts turned the joke on him and called him to order.

The chair said the point was well taken.

"I'll take my seat," said Gray, resuming his seat amid laughter and Watts's good natured advice of "sit down."

The rules were suspended by a vote of twenty-five to three, and the bill was read twice by title.

Watts moved to make it a special order for 2 P. M. to-morrow, and Gray amended to make the hour 10 A. M. Thursday.

Wager moved to refer to the commerce committee, but withdrew his motion on learning that Gray was chairman of the committee.

Watts accepted the amendment and the bill was made a special order for the time named.

Wager gave notice that he would move for reconsideration of the vote making this order.

Representative Layman's high license bill ran the gauntlet in the senate this afternoon, and was passed this evening. Eight amendments were offered and repeatedly voted down, not because of lack of merit, but because it was clearly to be seen that if the bill was amended it would have to be returned to the house to enable that body to concur in the changes, and such course would be dangerous. The senate therefore thought best to pass the bill as it was rather than risk its defeat by returning it to the house. It is well understood that several members of the house want to get another kick at it with a view of defeating it.

When the bill came up Cogswell moved to strike out the clause putting the law into effect on its approval by the governor. He maintained that when the law went into effect all the liquor dealers doing business in the country would have to conform with and take out a new license. His idea in striking out the emergency clause was to let the law take effect in the usual time, ninety days after its approval, and give dealers time to conform with the new condition of things.

Chandler, to settle the question, offered an amendment to the amendment providing that nothing in the act shall be construed to affect any existing license.

Watts said the bill contained such a provision, and Chandler remarked that he did not see any use of Cogswell's proposition.

Watts said if Cogswell's motion was adopted, every liquor dealer in the state would take out license for one year, and could not be reached for that time.

Chandler intimated that Watts's disposition to fix up a bill to suit his own peculiar ideas would eventually wind up with the defeat of the bill.

Chandler's amendment was voted down, 19 to 8; also Cogswell's, 21 to 7.

Chandler offered another amendment requiring any one wishing to sell liquor in less than one quart to give ample notice by publication in newspapers or otherwise, and providing that when there is no remonstrance to an application for a license the petition shall be construed to contain a majority of the voters. The amendment also makes the minimum fine for violations of the law fifty dollars instead of two hundred dollars, and the maximum fine two hundred and fifty dollars instead of four hundred dollars, and strikes out section ten, requiring the grand jury to return indictments against violators of the law. The amendments were voted down 19 to 8.

Cogswell moved to amend by making the license for the sale of all kinds of liquors $400, and subsequently that no license be issued for less than six months. He thought the license should be the same for all kinds. This amendment was also defeated, yeas 8, nays 18.

Chandler proposed another amendment, making the minimum fine $50 instead of $200. It was also defeated by a vote of 21 to 1.

Just as Watts moved to place the bill on its final passage Tongue submitted an amendment making the act inapplicable to towns incorporated before the passage of the act. This fared a little better than the rest and came very near to being adopted, the vote standing yeas 16, nays 14.

It was Watkins's turn to offer an amendment now. He wanted to make the license for spirituous liquors $500. The chair ruled him out of order, but rescinded the order on an explanation by Cogswell. It was beaten—yeas 13, nays 15.

When everybody thought the stock of amendments had been exhausted Raley offered one requiring the posting of petitions for licenses after the manner of posting county road notices. The senator had to satisfy himself with defeat, the vote standing yeas 1[illegible], nays [illegible].

Watts then moved to read the bill the third time and place it on final passage, but Raley objected, as it would break into the regular order of business. Watts withdrew his motion and moved to make the bill a special order for 7:30 to-night; carried—21 to 7.

At the evening session of the senate the discussion of Layman's high license bill was resumed and more amendments were offered and attempts made to recommit the bill. All efforts in this direction proved fruitless, as the friends of the bill were well prepared, and the bill was passed by a splendid vote.

Fullerton started the discussion by moving to recommit the bill to the judiciary committee with instructions to strike out sections four and five, which prescribe the form of obtaining license, and to make the law inapplicable to towns incorporated before the passage of the act.

Tongue wanted the matter settled at once. "For God's sake," he said, "let us dispose of it now. If we are going to beat it, let us beat it; if not, let us pass it. Any serious delay is likely to defeat the whole bill."

Gray moved to amend section 2 by requiring that no license shall be issued for a less period than six months, and for any license so granted there shall be paid into the treasury $50 for spirituous liquors and $150 for malt liquors. This amendment was voted down, [illegible].

Then Wager came to the front with an amendment making publication of the names of signers of a petition for license unnecessary.

Raley moved to lay the entire discussion on the matter on the table to await its regular order; lost, ayes 10, nays 17.

Watts moved the previous question, and the senate decided by a vote of 26 to 0 that it wanted the main question put.

Wager's amendment was then sent to join those of the others by a vote of nays 19, ayes [illegible].

Watts moved to put the main question, and the chair said he would put the question on Fullerton's amendment.

"What! Is there another amendment?" asked Watts in surprise. (Laughter.)

"Yes," replied the chair.

"Will you let us have another amendment?" responded Watts. (Laughter.)

Fullerton's amendments were then defeated, nays 20, ayes 6.

"Mr. President, I move the previous question," said Fullerton.

"Thank you," responded Watts, who had just arisen to make a similar motion.

Yeaton moved a call of the house, which was proceeded with, and the sergeant-at-arms was detailed to find Senators Barin, Cou-thorn, Sinclair and Steel, who did not respond to their names.

Chandler here notified the chair that there was an order of business for 3 o'clock, which had arrived, but the chair informed him that the senate was not in a condition to do business. [Laughter.]

After Sinclair had returned to his seat, Cogswell moved to dispense with further proceedings under call of the house; lost. When Cauthorn came in, Fullerton renewed the motion, but it was beaten.

Wager here moved to adjourn, but was informed that he was out of order. [Laughter.]

Dimick moved to dispense with further proceedings under the call of the house, and his motion prevailed. This ended all discussion, and the roll was called on the final passage of the bill. The yeas were 25, nays 4; absent, Barin. Those voting no were Gray, Stanley, Wait and Mr. President. Gray first voted for the bill, but changed, and Stanley voted no, for pure cussedness, because, as he said, he wanted to have some opposition.

The action of the senate to-night gives the people of Oregon a high license law such as they never had before. Governor Pennoyer will probably sign it. The enemies of the bill have done all in their power to defeat it, or block its passage, but its friends were too wary and met them at every point. If it had been referred to a committee for amendment Oregon would have had no high license law this session. To Senator Watts is due a great deal of credit for the success of the bill in the senate. He looked out for it and fought every attempt to amend it or refer it for amendment knowing well that such a course, if adopted, would be its death.

Fullerton's supreme court bill providing for the holding of sessions of the supreme court at Pendleton, Salem and Grant's Pass was taken up by the senate this morning, having been made the special order for 10:30. In addition to the annual salary of the judges, they are allowed $1500 each for expenses incurred in the performance of their duties. One of the best provisions of the bill is the one requiring the reports of the court to be published by the state printer, instead of being sent to San Francisco, where they have been published for over thirty years.

Fullerton spoke for the bill.

Veatch made another of his set constitutional, or, rather, unconstitutional speeches, but most of the senators were assiduously reading their OREGONIANS, which had just arrived, and did not hear much of what he said.

Wager read a petition from the bar of Eastern Oregon, favoring the holding of a term of the court in that section of the state.

Chamberlain said he had been urged by several Salem attorneys to vote against the bill, but he saw many meritorious ideas in the measure, and he was disposed to favor it.

On motion of Wager the call of the senate was proceeded with, and the sergeant-at-arms was instructed to look up the absentees. They were Gray and Mackay, but the latter having been excused to visit the penitentiary with a joint committee was not around. Sergeant-at-arms Pomeroy returned in a few moments with Gray. It was a good joke on the Clatsop senator, as yesterday he made a similar motion and caused the sergeant-at-arms to return with Senator Barin, who was in no happy mood thereat.

The bill was then passed, the vote standing ayes 22, nays 7.

Hatch's Monmouth normal school bill passed the senate in the face of a good deal of opposition this morning. After Hatch had spoken for the bill Tongue moved to recommit the bill to the committee on education, with instructions to make certain amendments. He charged that the friends of the bill had been most persistent in their efforts to lobby the bill through, and that for the past few years there had been a great deal of wooing and kissing of the state with the hope of a grand old wedding two years from now. The managers of the school are looking for something in the line of appropriations. Section 4 of the bill, which Tongue wanted stricken out, provides that the board of regents of the school shall hold in trust for the state of Oregon, the premises of the school at Monmouth. Tongue said it seemed to be the purpose of the managers of the school to make it a state institution and if the amendments do not prevail it will become such. He did not believe in appropriating the money of the people for such class institutions. He charged that the school was not a normal school in the full sense of the term as out of the thirty-seven recitations a day but one, lasting half an hour, was devoted to normal school work. "If we are to have a normal school let's have a normal school, not a literary institution," he said. He also objected to that clause of the bill which authorizes all graduates of the school to teach in any public school, as it was not properly guarded and gave every graduate a life diploma to teach, whether qualified or not.

Barin did not think the amendments helped the matter much.

Cogswell said the amendments should have been offered at the proper time. He was heartily in favor of state normal schools.

Hatch hoped the bill would not be sent back to the committee. Replying to Tongue's statement regarding the lobbying for the bill, he said that another lobby was working against the bill, and considering the source it was a standoff all around. He charged that other collegiate institutions have been making a bitter and unjust fight against the normal school.

Watkins objected to attaching any more schools to the state or creating any more schools deriving their support from the commonwealth. He believed as Tongue did, that the intention was to ask for state aid two years hence.

Veatch said that when he was in the house six years ago he withdrew his opposition to a similar bill on the promise of a Christian gentleman that state aid would not be asked for. "The facts are before you, fellow senators," he concluded.

Tongue understood that the men who made these promises six years ago returned two years afterward with a bill asking for appropriations. He reminded the senate of the gradual approach of the normal school to the state treasury.

The motion to recommit was voted down —16 to 12. Following is the vote:

AYES.

Chamberlin,
Chandler,
Dawson
Dimick,
Irvine
Looney,
Tongue,
Veatch,
Wager,
Wait,
Watkins,
Watts—12.

Gray was in the house all the time, hoping to see Northup's pilotage bill defeated.

Speaker Smith's bill to provide for constructing and operating portage railways between The Dalles and Celilo, and the upper and lower Cascades, was passed by the house this afternoon, and Thompson's bill to subsidize The Dalles Portage Company with [illegible] for twenty years, was indefinitely postponed. Both bills had been [illegible] in committee of the whole, and it had been decided to report the former bill to the house with a recommendation that it do not pass. When Paquet, who was chairman, made his report, the speaker asked Bowditch of Jackson to relieve him for a few moments and immediately moved to amend the report by striking out the word "not" from the committee's report. Smith spoke eloquently in behalf of the bill, reciting the great need for the improvements proposed, and quoting from Major Handbury's latest report the statement that the Cascade locks were a long way from completion.

The amendment was carried and the report as amended was adopted.

The rules were then suspended and the bill was placed on its final passage. Nearly all the speeches on this important bill had been made in committee of the whole, and only a few members took the floor in support of the measure, which nearly all the members favored. Even Paulsen, of Washington county, and Derby, of Yamhill, were with the majority this time. The bill passed—44 to 11; absent 5. Those voting no were Jennings, Miller of Linn, Morelock, Moss, Myers, Napton, Pope, Price, Short, Stafford, and Waldo. The bill appropriates $60,000 for the purpose of carrying out the work intended, and authorizing a tax of six-tenths of a mill to raise that sum. An amendment of the bill, which was adopted in committee of the whole, provides that the railway at the Cascades shall be first constructed.

Hume's bill making an appropriation of $14,000 to purchase artillery equipments for battery A, First artillery, O. N. G., was made the occasion for a display of wit by some of the members of the house before it was defeated this afternoon.

"I would like to ask the gentleman who introduced this bill," said Mr. Northup, "whether, in the event of war with Germany, this appropriation will be sufficient to protect the Columbia river."

"I am opposed to any appropriation for artillery wagons," said Roberts, "until we have built roads to our remotest boundaries on which to draw the artillery."

Derby, who is an old soldier, said he had had some little experience with cannon, and wanted nothing more to do with them. He would, therefore, vote no.

The bill then failed to pass, only a few members voting in the affirmative.

Senator Dawson's bill to prohibit the sale of tobacco, cigars and cigarettes to minors under the age of 18 years came into the house late in the afternoon, and under suspension of the rules was read twice by title.

Thompson then moved to still further suspend the rules and place the bill on its final passage. This was done. Harrington was the only one who spoke upon the bill, and though he opposed it, his speech was commended by a large number of those who voted for the bill, and was heartily applauded. He said it was one of those impracticable bills to be placed upon the statute books and never to be enforced. If there was any one thing upon which he was a crank, it was the tobacco habit. He never could conceive how a man could "roll up this weed, stick one end into his mouth, light the other, and suck the filthy smoke into his mouth and blow it out through his nostrils, or chew it up and spit the juice all over everywhere and be obliged to keep dishes by his desk, and chew and spit into them, and make their mouths and their persons, wherever they go, a stench and a poison on the pure air of heaven. Yet if men want to do this thing, they have the right, and I cannot vote to stop them."

The bill passed by a vote of 34 to 20.

The evening session of the house was devoted wholly to the consideration of incorporation bills. An effort was made to amend the Grant's Pass bill by striking out that provision which gives the city council power to put a street across the O. & C. depot grounds. These grounds are 300 feet wide by 2500 long, and were acquired by the railroad when the town of Grant's Pass was located all on one side of them. Only eleven members voted to consider the rights of the railroad company, and the bill then passed.

Fisher's bill to amend the charter of Albina, which passed, did not receive the support of Jennings, Paulsen, Derby et al., because it contains an objectionable clause exempting from taxation bonds which it is proposed to issue for the construction of water works. However, Mr. Fisher stated that it would be amended in the senate, as they had no desire to have the governor veto the bill.

The same thing came up again on the Eugene City charter bill, which authorizes the issuance of $50,000 bonds for the construction of sewers. Jennings and Stafford, who represent Lane county, the former being from Eugene City, were very anxious to have the exemption of bonds clause stricken out, so they could vote for the bill, but it was not done, and they go upon record as having voted against the interests of their own constituents, in order to appear consistent in their position that municipal bonds should not be exempt from taxation.

A canvass of the Multnomah delegations in both houses reveals that the members are practically unanimous against modifying the Portland water bill in any way. Besides, it is extremely doubtful if a modified bill could pass in the senate, as many outside of Multnomah county, who supported the defeated measure, say they could not retreat from the position they have taken, that municipal bonds should not be taxed.

Dawson's railroad commission bill, which passed the senate at the special session last evening, came up in the house this afternoon and, under suspension of the rules, was read three times, the first two by title, and placed upon its final passage. It was passed without discussion by a vote of 41 to 15. Those voting no were Gambee, Hahn, Layman, McCoy, Miller of Linn, Morelock, Moss, Myers, Napton, Paquet, Parker, Pope, Short, Stafford and Waldo. Those absent were Barhart, Harrington, Ricker and Wilson. The bill increases the number of commissioners to three, provides that not more than two of them shall belong to the same political party, and increases the salary to $2500 a year each, and $2000 annually to the clerk of said commission.

Senator Gray's bill appropriating $15,000 for the improvement and construction of a wagon road from Olney, Clatsop county, to Greenville, Washington county, via Mist and Vernonia, in Columbia county, came up in the house, and was read twice under suspension of the rules. An attempt was made further to suspend the rules and place the bill on final passage, but this was voted down. The bill appropriates $9000 to Clatsop county, $4000 to Columbia county and $2000 to Washington county.

In the senate this morning Raley's motion to take up Representative Condon's State University bill, which passed the house yesterday, was opposed by Tongue and Chamberlin, who held that such action disturbed the regular order of business. The vote stood 19 to 8, and the necessary two-thirds of the members not having voted in the affirmative the motion was lost.

Fullerton's supreme court bill came up in the house this afternoon and, under suspension of the rules, was read twice. Bean then moved that the bill be considered engrossed and passed to the third reading; and this was done.

IN THE SENATE.

Consideration of a Number of Important Bills—An Evening Session.

The morning session was opened with prayer by Rev. P. P. Towne, of Salem.

The senate first took up the favorable report of the railroad committee on Gray's bill, to authorize the Astoria & South Coast railway to build a bridge across Young's bay and Skipanon creek, Clatsop county; ordered engrossed.

NEW BILL.

By the committee on roads and highways—Offering a substitute bill for a batch of road bills which have been referred to it; read once.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Steel, S. C. R. No. 9—Providing for the appointment of a joint committee to visit the home conducted by the Oregon Children's Aid Society at Salem; adopted.

ENGROSSED BILLS—THIRD READING.

By Hatch—Providing for the appointment of regents at the State Normal School at Monmouth; passed.

By Fullerton—providing for the holding of terms of the supreme court at Pendleton and Grant's Pass in addition to Salem; passed.

By Fullerton—Authorizing the Gardner Mill Company to construct a boom on the Umpqua river; passed.

REPORTS.

By the committee on corporations, favorably on Cogswell's bill authorizing county courts to declare unnavigable streams highways for the floating of logs and timbers; ordered engrossed. Recess.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

When the senate reconvened, the committee on education reported favorably on Representative Layman's high license bill, which makes the license for malt liquors $200, and for spirituous liquors $400 a year; made a special order for 7:30 P. M.

Steel's concurrent resolution providing for a joint committee to visit the Children's Home at Salem was returned from the house, with an amendment that the committee visit the Home in Portland. The amendment was concurred in.

HOUSE BILLS.

By Northup—Fixing pilotage rates on the Columbia river; read twice.

By Condon—Relating to the State university. The senate refused to suspend the rules and take up this bill.

ENGROSSED BILLS—THIRD READING.

By Dawson—To prohibit the sale of cigarettes, cigars and tobacco to any minor under the age of 18 years; passed.

By Wager—To exempt homesteads from attachment and execution; lost. Wager gave notice that he would move to reconsider the vote. Seeing that the bill would be defeated, he voted against it so as to have an opportunity to move for its reconsideration.

EVENING SESSION—THIRD READING OF BILLS.

By Layman—High license bill; passed.

By Moore—Incorporating Rainier; passed.

By Raley—Incorporating Weston; passed.

By Fullerton—Amending the charter of Roseburg; passed.

Watkins's bill to authorize The Dalles city to issue $75,000 bonds to build water works was taken up, on motion of Watkins, and referred to the senators from Wasco and Gilliam, with instructions to increase the amount to $100,000, and strike out the clause making the bonds non-taxable. Adjourned.

HOUSE PROCEEDINGS.

Passage of Northup's Pilotage bill, as Amended.

SALEM, Feb. 12.—The house was called to order at 10 A. M., and the reading of the journal was dispensed with.

The committee on commerce reported back Northup's pilotage bill, which was immediately considered, under suspension of the rules, and after two hours' discussion was passed.

Recess till 2 P. M.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

The house reassembled at 2 P. M.

Blundell moved that when the house adjourn it be to meet at 7:30 for the sole purpose of considering incorporation bills; carried.

SENATE BILLS—FIRST READING.

Senate educational committee's bill to amend the school law providing that regular school funds may be used only for payment of teachers' salaries and apparatus; read twice and referred to the committee on education.

Eakin's bill to allow Lane county to issue $60,000 bonds for a court house; passed to third reading.

Fullerton's supreme court bill; read twice and passed to third reading.

Dawson's railroad commission bill; passed.

S. C. R. No. 9, to appoint a committee to visit the orphan homes at Salem and Portland; adopted.

Wager's reapportionment bill.

Hatch's bill for the appointment of regents for the State Normal school at Monmouth; referred to the committee on education.

Fullerton's bill authorizing the Gardner Mill Company to construct a boom on the Umpqua river; passed to the third reading.

Gray's bill to construct a wagon road in Clatsop, Columbia and Washington counties; read twice.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

By unanimous consent the following committees were permitted to report:

The Multnomah delegation reported favorably on Fisher's bill to amend the charter of Albina; also upon Gilbert's bill to amend the charter of Portland.

The committee on corporations reported favorably on Hume's bill to regulate commercial agencies; also on Bowditch's bill to amend the charter of Medford; Laughlin's bill to incorporate Newberg, Yamhill county; Bowditch's bill to incorporate the city of Ashland; Labbe's bill to incorporate the city of Oakland; Powell's bill to incorporate the town of Independence.

The committee on military affairs reported favorably on Bowditch's bill to amend Hill's code relating to salaries of county judges; also on Bean's bill relating to county roads.

Paquet, chairman of the committee of the whole, which considered Smith and Thompson's bills for portage railways at The Dalles and the Cascades, reported that the first bill be not passed, and the second be indefinitely postponed. The report was amended by striking out the word "not," and then adopted.

The committee on claims reported favorably on Waldo's bills for the relief of J. M. Dinsmore and John Stapleton; Maxwell's bill for the relief of Tillamook county; and Armstrong's bill for relief of Mrs. N. J. McPherson, with an amendment that the amount be cut down from $1400 to $1000.

The committee on counties reported favorably on Myers' bill to protect contractors, sub-contractors and laborers in their claims against railroad companies; also on Speaker Smith's bill for relief of Wasco county.

The committee on commerce reported favorably on Belknap's bill to appropriate money to aid the county court of Benton county to construct a wagon road from Alsea to tidewater.

A motion to suspend the rules and take up the Grant's Pass incorporation bill was lost. It was made a special order for 7:30 P. M.

The joint committee on assessment and taxation, to whom was referred the bills on that subject, introduced by Wilson, Paulsen and Gamble, reported a substitute measure, to take the place of all three. The substitute bill was numbered 237, referred to the committee of the whole, and made a special order for 10:30 to-morrow morning.

The committee on railways and transportation reported favorably on Parker's bill to authorize the Astoria & South Coast Railway Company to construct a bridge across Young's bay.

The committee on mining reported favorably on Maxwell's bill relating to mining claims.

Senator Dawson's bill to prohibit the sale of cigarettes to minors was read three times, under suspension of the rules, and passed.

HOUSE BILLS—THIRD READING.

Speaker Smith's bill for a portage railway at the Cascades, and between The Dalles and Celilo; passed.

Hume's bill to buy artillery for battery A failed to pass.

Gilbert's bill for the creation of special road districts in lands subject to overflow; passed.

Ricker's bill to authorize the Gardner Mill company to construct a boom on the Umpqua river, was withdrawn, and the senate bill, now on third reading, which authorizes the same construction, takes its place.

Recess till 7:30.

EVENING SESSION.

Howard's bill to amend the incorporation act of Grant's Pass; a motion to consider the bill in committee of the whole, for the purpose of amendment, was lost. The bill then passed.

Fisher's bill to amend the charter of Albina; passed.

A message from the senate announced that the senate had passed Raley's bill to incorporate the city of Weston; read once.

Senator Moore's bill to incorporate St. Helens; read twice.

Senator Fullerton's bill to incorporate Roseburg; read twice.

Condon's bill to amend the charter of Eugene; passed. Adjourned.

NORTHWESTERN NEWS.

Agent Coffee Removed From the Umatilla Agency.

WAR ON THE SEATTLE MUD FLATS.

Arrest of an Ex-Convict on a Charge of Murder —Progress of the Hunt Railway Scheme —Puget Sound Notes.

PENDLETON, Or., Feb. 12.—Col. J. C. Saunders, government inspector of Indian reservations, to-day removed Bartholomew Coffee, superintendent of the Umatilla reservation, and Paddy Mills, chief clerk, the latter on a charge of drunkenness. Some time ago a number of prominent Indians on the reservation, including Shawawai, Heo and Cash Cash, preferred charges against Agent Coffee, claiming that he was incompetent and devoted his time to personal affairs, to the detriment of the Indians.

On Wednesday last Colonel Saunders put in an appearance to investigate the charges, and after staying here two days, left for Puget sound. He returned a day or two ago, and has been in close consultation with Simon Gregoire, formerly of Marion county, and an applicant for the position of superintendent of the reservation under the new administration, and other parties living on the reservation and in Pendleton.

Incidental to the Coffee affair, other troubles on the reservation are coming to the surface. Superintendent Garland, of the Indian school, a strong partisan of Coffee, and Dr. Macado, reservation physician, had a personal altercation over the trouble, in which the former threatened to shoot the latter. The trouble is being also investigated by the inspector.

It is said to-night that E. D. Boyd will be appointed temporary superintendent.

PENDLETON NEWS ITEMS.

PENDLETON, Feb. 12.—Owing to the illness of Judge Fee, the regular term of the circuit court of Union county has been adjourned, and a special term will be called early in March. The continued illness of Judge Ison, now in Southern California, makes it impossible for one judge to perform the duties of judge of the entire district.

Frank B. Clopton, postmaster of this city, and Miss Sybil Griffen, will be united in marriage to-morrow afternoon, and leave on a wedding tour to Portland and Puget sound.

WAR ON THE MUD FLATS.

A Man with a Henry Rifle at Every Pile—Bloodshed Not Improbable.

SEATTLE, W. T., Feb. 12.—War has broken out again over possession of the mud flats, and it is altogether likely there will be bloodshed before it ends. A syndicate of Seattle citizens some time since, caused 1200 feet to be enclosed by piles, at a cost of several thousand dollars. Some days since F. Wickstrom, an oysterman, built a house in the middle of the inclosure, having taken up an oyster claim under the provisions of the territorial law authorizing him so to do. He was not disturbed until yesterday morning, when the syndicate began to drive piles for a wharf. This aroused Wickstrom, and last night he took twenty-five men, with guns and axes, and cut down about fifty of the piles which had been previously driven.

Nothing was known about this onslaught till this morning, when the syndicate's men started to work.

To-night a party of oystermen, armed as last night, went to the scene of the former occurrence and started to cut down piles, but they were somewhat confused when they found a man with a Henry rifle guarding every pile. They held a council of war, and concluded not to push the attack. But there is bad blood over the possession of the flats, and trouble is momentarily expected to ensue.

WALLA WALLA NOTES.

Arrest of an Ex-Convict—Favorable Progress of the Hunt Railway Scheme.

WALLA WALLA, Feb. 12.—This evening Constable Morse left for Seattle to bring back Tug Wilson, an ex-convict, who was arrested there this morning, charged with being an accomplice of the murderer of Thomas Davis, who was found in a cut on the railroad below the city November 16 last, with his throat cut from ear to ear. Gordon Cooper, another ex-convict, charged with the same offense, has been in jail here, awaiting the action of the grand jury, for several months.

This evening George W. Hunt, in response to a dispatch announcing the serious illness of one of his children in Ohio, departed for the East. Before going he had a lengthy interview with Dayton and Waitsburg folks relative to the building of a railroad to those places, which interview is understood to have been satisfactory, the chief difficulty in the way being the refusal of our commissioners to issue $50,000 scrip, to be used in building the road from here to Waitsburg, on account of the injunction having lately been served on the commissioners at the instance of Prescott parties. But it is now believed that even that obstruction will soon be overcome and the building of the road will proceed as soon as spring fairly opens.

The Hunt railway meeting at Pendleton Monday was also quite satisfactory, Mr. Hunt agreeing to advance money for depot purposes, and also to divide the subsidy asked, which amounts to $85,000, into three payments, the first to be due October next, and the deferred payments to bear interest at 6 per cent. The road will be completed to Pendleton by the time the first payment becomes due. He also agreed to haul freight to and from Sound points at the same rate as the O. R. & N. carries freight to and from Portland. It is thought that there is no doubt of the subsidy being raised, as the people there are working with a will.

Judge Fee was taken suddenly ill Saturday evening, and is now confined to his residence at Pendleton. It is supposed to be the result of overwork and a severe cold.

Ten wealthy farmers of Stage Gulch, Umatilla county, met G. W. Hunt at Pendleton Monday, and offered him most favorable inducements to extend his road to that fertile section.

The movement on foot to establish a meat curing business at Weston is likely to be successful. At a session of the county commissioners here Saturday the bonds of the newly elected county officers were approved. J. A. Taylor was appointed overseer of the poor, and Drs. Keyler and Bingham county physicians. The amount of funds in the treasury is $17,000.

The sparring match that was to come off here Saturday night has been indefinitely postponed. The police gave notice that arrests would be made if it took place.

The penitentiary commissioners have ordered a new steam brick machine of large capacity, in anticipation of a building boom the coming season. They have given up the idea of running the same by electricity, Commissioner Sharpstein, now in California investigating, reporting adversely.

Lew Locher, of this city, selected by the government for work on the coast survey and assigned to the survey of Skagit river, will leave in a few days for his field of labor.

FROM SEATTLE.

Arrest of a Hard Character on a Charge of Murder.

SEATTLE, W. T., Feb. 12.—Tug Wilson, a character known all over the Northwest, was apprehended here this morning by Officer Thompson, on a charge of murder. The information came from Walla Walla. Wilson was but recently released from the penitentiary there. It is not known for whose murder he has been apprehended and the arrival of an officer from Walla Walla to-morrow is awaited to ascertain.

The case of Kline, indicted for the murder of Bossler, took a peculiar turn in the circuit court this morning. When the case was called, defendant's attorney filed a demurrer, in which he set up that inasmuch that the constitution guarantees to every man a speedy trial when accused of high crime by his fellows, he should have been brought to trial before this, and that in the absence of a judge, a judicial officer from some other district should have been summoned. The demurrer was overruled by Judge Burke, on the ground that the exigencies of the past few months justified all the delay.

It transpired to-day that the smooth young man who last week worked the rapid charge racket in Portland, also played successfully the same game here. One day he stepped hurriedly into the store of W. P. Boyd & Co., and presenting a check for $40 on the Seattle Hardware Company, got the money. The bookkeeper who gave him the money has just discovered his loss.

The molders striking in the Washington Works will return to work to-morrow morning, an understanding having been reached by which piece work is hereafter excluded from the works.

The chief of police arrested one Joshua Meffered, a hack driver, on information from Kern county, Cal. It appears that Meffered had been deputy sheriff and constable in Kern county, and was arrested there for overcharging fees. He was held in $500 bonds, which he jumped several months since, coming to Seattle. He will be taken back on the arrival of an officer from California.

MR. LEVINSON GOES TO PORT TOWNSEND.

Mr. N. J. Levinson, formerly of Portland, and later of Seattle, has located in Port Townsend, where he will engage in the real estate business with Mr. B. S. Miller, a well-known capitalist of that city. Mr. Levinson has charge also of the Post-Intelligencer bureau for Port Townsend.

FROM TACOMA.

A Peculiar and Serious Accident—The Naval Commission—Etc.

TACOMA, W. T., Feb 12.—J. W. Kendrick, chief engineer, H. S. Huson, principal assistant engineer, N. D. Root, assistant general superintendent, and A. L. Horner, division superintendent of the Northern Pacific, were here to-day, examining the improvements going on at the head of the bay. While doing so, Root and Horner stood on the track where flat cars loaded with earth were being discharged by means of a plow drawn by a cable attached to a locomotive. The cable was lying on the ground and a signal was given to the engineer to start up, and a warning to Root and Horner was misunderstood. The cable straightened up from the ground and struck Root a heavy glancing blow across the groin and pit of the stomach, throwing him about ten feet. Horner jumped and was made to turn a sommersault, but alighted without injury. Root was carried to his car suffering intense agony. At first it was believed he had sustained severe internal injuries, but an examination by Dr. Davies, the company's surgeon, convinces him that such is not the case. At 10 o'clock, though he had had several hours of great pain he was resting comparatively easy, and the doctor expects he will be able to get up in three or four days.

The members of the naval commission arrived here to-night, and are guests of George Browne, of the St. Paul and Tacoma Lumber Co. To-morrow they will take the U. S. lighthouse steamer Manzanita, now waiting here, and commence a tour of the Sound, looking at all the proposed locations for the new navy yard.

Articles of incorporation of the Orting Light and Water Company were filed to-day, with a capital of $24,000. The object is to provide light and water for the town of Orting. Trustees, F. E. Eldrege and E. A. Boatman.

Victor Hertzfeld, the surviving partner, applied to-day for letters of administration on the partnership estate of Herman Kiesewetter, deceased, and Mary A. Meyer on the estate of Oscar A. Rowell, deceased.

NOTES FROM SALEM.

A Number of Incorporations—Libel Suit Dismissed—Etc.

SALEM, Or., Feb. 12.—Articles of incorporation were filed to-day in the secretary of state's office by the King & Cake Soap Company; F. P. King, Wm. M. Cake, J. H. Rennick and H. W. Riley, incorporators; capital stock, $20,000; principal office, Portland.

Integrity Lodge, No. 92, I. O. O. F.; Felix Rullikteil, A. S. Kees and W. D. Hansford, incorporators; principal office, Pendleton; capital stock, $500.

The First Presbyterian church of Oregon City; John M. Bacon, Luther C. Caples, E. M. Rands, James A. Chase and J. T. Apperson, trustees; value of property, $1500.

The Ashland Building and Loan Association; J. S. Walter, W. H. Atkinson, George Engle, J. M. McCall, W. H. Leeds, O. H. Blount, A. W. Scott, U. L. McCall, H. B. Carter, J. M. Luark, J. W. Hockersmith and A. S. Hammond, incorporators; principal office, Ashland; capital stock, $100,000.

C. B. Watson, of Ashland, and S. R. Irwin, of Portland, have been appointed notaries public.

The sheriff of Umatilla county brought to the penitentiary to-day George H. Kelly, sentenced to three and a half years, for seduction.

In the circuit court the two indictments against Rosenfeld and Rosenthal, of the Portland Mercury, were dismissed. Defendant filed an affidavit declaring true a statement published in last Sunday's Mercury, which acknowledged that the articles heretofore published against Dr. J. C. Gilbert, and upon which the indictments were found, to be false and unjust to Gilbert, whereupon the doctor, who is prosecuting witness, filed an acknowledgment of satisfaction, and the case was dropped.

The case of Ching Hing, for damages against C. D. Smith, who struck him on the head with a fork handle last harvest, was dismissed to-day. Smith compromised by paying the Chinaman $100.

The committee was out a while to-day, and obtained $6345 of the $20,000 bonus for the woolen mill. No trouble is anticipated in getting the remainder in a few days.

FROM SPOKANE FALLS.

A Prize Fight Arranged—The Public School Trouble.

SPOKANE FALLS, Feb. 12.—Jerry Flowers, the colored pugilist, who knocked out Frank Silver, the dago, Saturday night, was to-day matched against Professor W. J. Kendall, teacher of the Athletic club here to fight twenty rounds, Queensbury rules, for $250 a side, the fight to take place within thirty days in this city. The colored man has a strong backing, but Kendall is a favorite. He has no ring record, but is a very handy man with his fists.

The school board to-night decided to reconsider the action on the resignation of Professor Bruce Wolverton, superintendent of the city schools, which was accepted Saturday. The board decided to maintain its authority. The majority thought the trouble was brought about by a combination of teachers opposed to Professor Wolverton, and who declared he was incompetent. The board decided, however, to put another man in his place for the next school year and tendered the position to Professor D. Bemiss, of Fort Smith, Kan., at $1500 a year.

EFFECT OF THE TARIFF BILL.

Estimated Reduction of Customs Collections, in Case of its Passage.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The computations made by the treasury department of the probable effect on revenues of the tariff bill and senate amendments have been made public.

They show that the house bill would reduce collections from the customs $50,350,345 and from internal revenue $17,610,234, or a total reduction of revenue of $67,960,579. The bill, as amended by the senate, would reduce customs collections $13,976,887 and internal revenue receipts $33,905,780, or $47,882,667 in the aggregate. The average ad valorem rates, under the existing law is 36.91 per cent. under the house bill it would be 42.38 per cent. and under the senate bill 46 per cent.

In his letter transmitting the computations, Secretary Fairchild says:

To avoid extra delay and labor, the department has made up a list of estimates, formerly prepared, based on the importations for 1887. Although made according to the plan and theory usually adopted, I recognize that these estimates are largely conjectural and more, or less, unreliable and misleading.

INCAPABLE OF ENFORCEMENT.

A Petition Presented to the Rhode Island Legislature Against the Prohibitory Amendment.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 12.—In the house of representatives to-day, a petition with 602 signatures was presented, stating that the petitioners, taxpayers and business men of the state, feeling that the prohibition amendment was injurious to the best interests of the state, as well as incapable of enforcement, and that it had placed the liquor business beyond control and supervision, and had depreciated the price of real estate, petitioned for an amendment abrogating the prohibitory amendment.

How the Bicyclists Stand.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Miss Armaindo remained on the track in the bicycle race but a short time to-day. She was looking very poorly. At 1 P. M. the score stood: Stanley, 204; Baldwin, 195; Von Blumen, 191; Woods, 173; Lewis, 162; Stallow, 170; Hart, 147; Oaks, 135; Armaindo, 112; McShane, 121; Brown, 116.

THE PARNELL INQUIRY

Continuation of the Cross-Examination of LeCaron.

HIS OPERATIONS IN AMERICA.

The Government Paid for His Services as a Spy —His Relations with Parnell, Egan and Other Irish Leaders.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—The cross-examination of LeCaron was continued to-day. He said he had visited Europe five times since 1867, sometimes in a professional capacity and sometimes privately. He reported himself to the authorities on each occasion. Neither O'Kelly nor Parnell had ever written to him. Witness believed O'Leary was an opponent of the league. Continuing, witness said he delivered sealed packages from Devoy and O'Leary to Egan in Paris in 1881, and acknowledged that the security of the seals alone prevented him from opening the packages. He again saw Egan in America in 1883. Later Egan introduced him to Parnell in the lobby of the house of commons. He conversed with Parnell and was complimented by him on his work. The Irish Republican Brotherhood was then opposed to Parnell, so far as the Home organization was concerned. Parnell complained of this opposition and said that the Home, and sister organizations, would have been crippled, had they not obtained assistance from America. At Parnell's request, the witness saw Devoy, Sullivan, and two others, in America. He did not write the result of his conversation with these men to Parnell, because he had not been requested to. Moreover, Egan had instructed witness to write to him. Witness conversed with Parnell, but had no reference to Egan. The most important part of Parnell's conversation concerned the views on revolutionists. He declared that he did not see why an insurrection should be unsuccessful. Witness had heard this before from Egan, but coming from Parnell it startled him.

Sir Charles Russel, counsel for the Parnellites, and Sir Henry James, counsel for the Times, here announced that they had agreed not to produce the documents which were subject to discussion on Friday last.

The government paid witness £2000 between February, 1868, and August, 1876. He spent every cent of this for public purposes. For instance, he took John O'Neil's "I. O. U." for £75 to save his reputation and to keep him from becoming a defaulter. This action gave the witness a strong hold on O'Neill. He had spent more than he had received in the public service. He had made no arrangements for future reward. The U. C. organization, which numbered 23,000 members, deliberately and knowingly supported the dynamite policy in the convention of 1881. One hundred and sixty-two of the delegates present favored the use of dynamite. The convention held in Madison Square Garden in New York in 1884, advocated dynamite. Sullivan, Homasney, Gronon, Smythe, Scanlon, Hick, Furlong and Crane were present at the convention.

LeCaron produced two photographs of Parnell, which he had received at different times, both bearing Parnell's autograph. He said that Egan gave him his photograph which was signed "best regards," in Paris, in 1881. Egan also gave him a photograph of a leading member of the league, which was similarly signed. LeCaron said that the convention unanimously agreed to carry on a secret warfare.

The "V. C." comprised the dynamite party apart from the O'Donovan Rossa party. The secret organization was first conceived in 1869. The "V. C." dated from 1872. Rossa was expelled from the organization for insubordination. He wanted to rule or ruin. The connection between the supreme council and the "V. C." was ruptured at Boston, at a convention in 1884, each organization claiming to be the legitimate body.

Parnell requested witness to write to Devor, Sullivan, Hines and Carroll. Since his examination witness had received from America one of Devor's original letters. It was dated: "Office of James Reynolds, No. 41 Orange street, New Haven, June 24, 1881." The letter was admitted as evidence. It reads, in part:

"I received yesterday a short note from —— (meaning Egan) strongly urging me to come over, but cannot understand why until I get your explanation. I should like to come, if I could spare time, and if my visit would produce the effect anticipated. But I fear it would not. None of us can guarantee anything for those on the other side who are hostile, but who, I feel certain, do not represent the opinion of the home organization. There can be no chance there until there is a change of persons, which is sure to come in time. All I could do would be to tell E. and P. (P. meaning Parnell) on my own responsibility what will satisfy our friends and make proposals. Parnell and his friends seem to misunderstand the dissatisfaction here. It is not caused by their action in Ireland, but by the action they allow their friends to take here in their name. Opinions differ little on essential points, but we cannot tolerate the kind of thing begun in Buffalo. I will write again."

Le Caron said "the kind of thing began in Buffalo," related to the action of Parnell's friends, in attempting to open the convention and to depose, disorganize and disrupt the revolutionary organization. Witness identified the alleged speech by Parnell referring to the letters of determination "to sever the last link binding Ireland and England." The court then adjourned.

WM. O'BRIEN'S CASE.

It is Set for Thursday—The Government Forbids Crowds Gathering.

DUBLIN, Feb. 12.—Wm. O'Brien was taken from Tralee to Killarney to-day, where he was arraigned for violating the crimes act. O'Brien looked haggard. When his case was called he asked for an adjournment, on the ground that he had not been able to consult with his counsel. The court granted the request and set the hearing for Thursday. The government had posted a proclamation along the route from Tralee to Killarney forbidding the gathering of crowds. O'Brien was escorted by military.

THE PAPAL ALLOCUTION.

Necessity for the Powers to Make Common Cause With the Church.

ROME, Feb. 12.—The pope in his allocution, after declaring that the negotiations between Russia and the vatican are progressing satisfactorily and will soon be concluded, dealt at length with the position of the church in the modern world. He says that it is now more than ever necessary for the powers to make common cause with the church, by reason of the perils by which they are threatened, proof of which was afforded by the recent unfortunate disturbances in Rome. Arms alone, the progress of military science and the perfecting of weapons of destruction were insufficient. Moreover, even though it were permitted to employ arms in self defense, nature does not tolerate that might be held a sufficient surety for right. Peace must be preserved by rendering to each what belongs to him, and strictly adhering to the dictates of the church.

PROGRESSIVE JAPAN.

Her New Constitution Establishes a Parliament and Confers the Right of Suffrage.

TOKIO, Feb. 12.—The new constitution was promulgated from the throne by the mikado on Monday. The constitution established a house of peers, members of which are to be partly hereditary, partly elective and partly nominated by the mikado, and a house of commons of 300 members. The right of suffrage is given to all men of the age of 25 years and over who pay taxes to the amount of $25 yearly. Liberty of religion, freedom of speech and right of public meetings are established. The parliament shall possess legislative functions and have control of the finance, under limitation. Judges cannot be removed except by special legislation.

An American Girl Who Eloped.

NICE, Feb. 12.—The correctional tribunal has decided that Dr. Selton, who recently eloped with Miss Wilcox of New York, can not be arraigned under the French law, as Miss Wilcox is over sixteen years of age, and she ran away of her own free will. Dr. Selton will be liberated.

Another M. P. Sentenced.

DONEGAL, Feb. 12.—James Oakley, member of Parliament, has been sentenced to six month's imprisonment for inciting tenants to adopt the "Plan of Campaign." He has entered an appeal.

Tired of the English Yoke.

LONDON, Feb. 12.—Dhuleep Sing has sent to India a proclamation inviting the people to subscribe the sum of £4,000,000 with the object of throwing off the English yoke.

WASHINGTON NEWS ITEMS.

Land Grant Forfeiture Bill.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The conferees on the land grant forfeiture bill had another meeting to-day. At the suggestion of [illegible] the senate bill was taken up for detailed consideration, and about one-third of it was gone over before the convention adjourned. Although it appeared from the proceedings that an understanding had been reached that would result in ultimate agreement, there was nothing said which would warrant the assumption that Stone had abandoned his intention to insist upon the adoption of an amendment to the senate bill providing for a test case in the supreme court to determine the power of congress to declare forfeiture.

Army Notes.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Captain Morris C. Wessels, of the Twenty-fourt infantry, has been ordered to conduct a detachment of recruits to the department of Arizona.

BLAINE IS THE MAN.

ALSO ABOUT SOUTHERN POLITICS

Harrison Tendered Him the State Portfolio Immediately After the Election, and the Offer Was Thankfully Accepted

BALTIMORE, Feb 12—Colonel Julian Allen of Statesville, North Carolina, who has been in the city for several days, in the interest of the Southern exposition, that will be held the coming fall in some Northern city, to-day told a reporter of the American that while in Washington recently, he had an extended interview with James G. Blaine. The latter gentleman expressed a cordial interest in the project and a willingness to do anything in his power to help it forward. He also took occasion to express his deep interest in the development of the South, and his earnest hope of a settlement of the race problem in a way that would insure the best interests of the whole people.

In the selection of federal officers for the Southern States Mr. Blaine led Colonel Allen to think he would favor the appointment of conservative republicans, men who had laid aside the hatreds and bitternesses of war times, and who were aiming at the development of the country and the happiness and welfare of the people.

In many ways Blaine expressed his concern for the welfare of the South, and his interest in its future.

Blaine also spoke with freedom about his acceptance of the portfolio of secretary of state in General Harrison's cabinet, and said that President Harrison tendered him the position a few days after his election, and did it in such a cordial way that he at once accepted it in the same spirit.

A DEMOCRATIC STATEMENT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—A special to the Examiner (Dem.) says: Blaine will be President Harrison's secretary of state unless he recalls a letter of acceptance which he mailed about three weeks ago. General Harrison revolved the matter for a long time in his mind, and about the time Blaine came to Washington to live he had almost determined not to appoint him. Further reflection, however, and the importunities of Blaine's friends led him to the feeling that Blaine would do less harm in the cabinet than out of it. He argues that Blaine in the cabinet will be bound to regard his wishes, and will be in a sense under his orders, while out of it he would be a free lance in opposition.

IN HONOR OF LINCOLN

Celebration of the Martyred President's Birthday in Chicago

CHICAGO, Feb 12.—Five hundred guests were present at the banquet given by the La Salle Club to-night in celebration of Abraham Lincoln's birthday. Ex-Vice President Hannibal Hamlin was the honored guest of the evening. Among the other notables present were Robert Lincoln, Stephen Douglas, jr., Honorable John A. Kasson of Iowa, Governor Larrabee, of Iowa, and Honorable George C. Boutwell. The burden of all the speeches was the idea that Lincoln's birthday should be made a national holiday.

Three other celebrations of the anniversary were held in Chicago this afternoon and evening. At the Chicago opera house in the afternoon Honorable John A. Kasson delivered a magnificent tribute to Lincoln.

THE CELEBRATION ELSEWHERE.

NEW YORK, Feb 12—Lincoln's birthday was commemorated in this city, Jersey City and Newark by banquets. The republican club of this city made it the occasion of their third annual dinner, and among those present were Hon. Benjamin Butterworth of Ohio, Hon. C. A. Boutelle of Maine, General Horace Porter, Colonel [illegible] New of Indiana and Stephen B. Elkins. Letters of regret were received from Senators Hiscock and Sherman, James G. Blaine and General Harrison.

GENERAL NOBLE'S PROSPECTS

He Is Considered a Distinct Possibility for the Place of Attorney General

INDIANAPOLIS, Feb 12—Politicians have discovered that General Noble of St. Louis, one of the leading attorneys of that city, is among the cabinet possibilities. He is named for attorney general. What particularly recommends and renders possible, if not probable, the selection of General Noble is the fact that he is not identified with any party faction in his state. It is said that the withdrawal of Hon. John B. Henderson's name from the list of cabinet possibilities was necessitated largely upon these grounds.

General Harrison had perhaps as many as 300 callers this afternoon, chiefly delegates in attendance at the third annual meeting of the Lincoln League of Indiana.

Carter B. Harrison of Murfreesboro, Tenn., brother of the president-elect, arrived in this city to-day and is the guest of his relatives.

IMMIGRANT RATE WAR

A Pool Formed to Get a Part of Their Business From the Southern Pacific

NEW YORK, Feb 12—Another war in commissions on immigrant fares to the Pacific coast has broken out. The movement is directed against the Southern Pacific, which represents Castle Garden, but secures the majority of the business. The proposition probably springs from the Santa Fe, Union Pacific and Denver & Rio Grande, as it did before, although the trunk lines are the ones this time who openly offer commissions to get business. The bonus reaches as high as $13 on single tickets from New York to San Francisco over any lines in the pool. The object is to force the Southern Pacific road into the pool and get it to divide the profits, but from a talk with E. Hawley, agent of the company in this city, that concession is not likely to be made yet awhile. The Southern Pacific offers drummers similar profits to get business.

SOLDIERS' HOMES

General Sherman Thinks Their Doors Should be Opened to Confederates

NEW YORK, Feb 12—General Sherman says of the proposed Confederate home in Texas that the homes provided for Union soldiers should be opened to the Confederate soldiers, and that the laws of the United States should be so changed as to admit Confederates, and the word "Union," so far as it applies to a soldiers' home, should be obliterated from the United States laws so that they will apply to soldiers, regardless of the side they fought on.

Major Stewart, to whom the general was talking, took issue with him and said that Southern men did not ask or expect such action by congress; that many thought it would not be right in principle and would establish a dangerous precedent for the United States to provide pensions or homes for men who in effect fought to destroy the integrity of the Union.

AN INTERSTATE CONVENTION

To Be Held in St. Louis to Investigate the Alleged Pork and Beef Combine

ST. LOUIS, Feb 12—Governor Humphrey of Kansas has selected St. Louis as the place and March 12th as the time for holding an interstate convention to investigate the alleged pork and beef combine. The convention will be composed of a joint committee of senators and five representatives from the legislatures of Nebraska, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota, Arkansas, Texas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona and Wyoming. Several of the states have already been heard from favorably, and there is little doubt that all of them will be represented. The governor of Pennsylvania has expressed a desire to have that state represented, although Pennsylvania was not invited to take part in the movement.

FOR OREGON AND WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON, Feb 12—At the request of Senator Mitchell, the commissioner of the general land office yesterday instructed the surveyor-general of Oregon to forward triplicate plats of township 1 south, range 8 east, Willamette meridian, Oregon, to the proper local land office.

In the senate to-day Senator Dolph presented a petition for the creation of a new county out of Whitman and Spokane counties, Washington Territory, and a remonstrance against the same.

THE LIGHT WEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myers Have Gone Out to Fight

NORTH JUDSON, Ind., Feb 12.—A train bearing a crowd of people from Chicago to witness the prize fight between Jack McAuliffe and Billy Myers for $[illegible] a side and the light weight championship of the world arrived in North Judson a half hour before midnight to-night. At 12:15 A. M. it was reported that the fight had been stopped by order from the governor. Pending confirmation or denial the crowd impatiently awaits developments. The opinion was quite general that there would be no fight to-night.

ARRANGING FOR THE FIGHT.

NORTH JUDSON, Ind., Feb 13, 1:00 A. M.—When the hall was found closed against the party, adjournment was taken to the train, which was run down to Wilders Junction. After three hours' wait the management notified the impatient sports that a return would be made to Judson, and if quiet was preserved the fight would be pulled off at the hall as originally decided on. Preliminaries are now being completed, and within a few hours the light weight championship will be settled.

ON THE AFGHAN FRONTIER

The Ameer Causes a Flurry Throughout Europe

BERLIN, Feb 12—The bourse was scared by to-day's news from Central Asia and sold foreign stocks largely, especially Russians, which dropped ¾ per cent. Roubles declined from 217 to 215. Reports based on Moscow advices were circulated to the effect that Russian troops had been ordered on a hurried march from Chardjui upon Kerki and from Werg to Penjdeh to reinforce the frontier posts. St. Petersburg telegrams concur in stating that the government's purpose is to retaliate upon the ameer, who is executing by the wholesale partisans of Ishak Khan, forbidding commercial intercourse with the Russians, strengthening frontier posts and warning his clans of the approach of a war with the czar.

Inquiry by messages sent to London elicited reassuring responses to the effect that the ameer is pledged not to attack Russia without British assent, and that he is probably exciting an anti-Russian feeling in order to divert the Afghans from internal conspiracies.

WANTED A NEW PLAN TO TEST STEEL

The Present System Requires too Many Officers and Is Expensive

WASHINGTON, Feb 12—A conference was held at the navy department to-day between representatives of the steel manufacturers of the country and Secretary Whitney to devise a new plan for testing steel used in the new war vessels. Heretofore it has been customary to detail a board of naval officers to test the steel at the factories for vessels, but now, owing to so many vessels being constructed at different parts of the country, it takes so many boards of officers that it makes the plan very expensive. The secretary presents a new plan to hold the manufacturers responsible for all steel used and only test it after the vessel is ready.

BISMARCK'S CONDITION

Serious Physical Ailments Combined With Great Worry Over State Matters

BERLIN, Feb 12—Prince Bismarck's attack of neuralgia is complicated with rheumatism, renal disorder, want of appetite and insomnia. He continues to work against the advice of his doctors. His visits to the chancellerie are marked with frequent outbursts of passion and other evidences of extreme irritability. Apart from his morbid physical condition, party intrigues aiming to sap his influence with the emperor worry the chancellor more than ever. Count von Waldersee, whom the ultra-conservatives hope to see succeed Bismarck at no distant day, scored against the chancellor by getting the emperor to assent to the stopping of the action against the Kreutz Zeitung.

HOW WILKIE COLLINS WRITES

Mr. Collins, says the February Book Buyer, has described the manner in which he works out his plot and clothes this framework with flesh and blood. He used "The Woman in White" to illustrate his method of writing novels. "His first effort was to get his central idea—the pivot on which the story turns." This occurred to him in the shape of a conspiracy in private life by which a woman is robbed of her identity by being confounded with another woman whom she closely resembles. He next searched for and finally found the three principal characters in the drama, the conspirator and the two women. Then began the process of building up the story, three things being borne in mind: "to begin at the beginning, to keep the story always advancing without paying the smallest attention to the serial division in parts or to the book publication in volumes, and to decide on the end."

The first step was to sketch the plot in the mind—to decide in a very general way upon the development of the story. The beginning of "The Woman in White" gave the author much trouble. He decided upon an opening scene and spent over a week in writing it out, only to throw it away. Nor did any satisfactory idea suggest itself to him until one evening he happened to read in a newspaper of a lunatic who had escaped from an asylum. Instantly the possibility of using this incident occurred to him, and he fell to work upon a new beginning for the story. After that all was comparatively smooth work, the characters and the details of the plot being elaborated as the story advanced. After six months of hard labor the tale was completed.

Young authors will be interested in Mr. Collins's account of his efforts to perfect his style. "The day's writing having been finished," he says, "with such corrections of words and such rebuilding of sentences as occur to me at the time, is subjected to a first revision on the next day, and is then handed to my copyist. The copyist's manuscript undergoes a second and third revision and is then sent to the printer. The proof passes through a fourth process of correction. It is settled to have the new alterations embodied in a revise. When this reaches me it is looked over once more before it goes back to press. When the serial publication of the novel is reprinted in book form, the book proofs undergo a sixth revision. Then at last my labor of correction has come to an end."

THE RAILROAD OUTLOOK

A Talk with Mr. Maxwell of the O. R. & N.

THE PROPOSED LINE TO SEATTLE

Work of the California Legislature—The Nevada Lottery Proposition Defeated by About Three Hundred Majority

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—A. L. Maxwell, general passenger and ticket agent of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company, who was in town to-day, was interviewed on the subject of what is termed here to be a secret movement of the Southern Pacific upon the Puget Sound country. He said that while the Southern Pacific would doubtless rather get into Seattle over another company's line and make a traffic arrangement with the line from Portland to the Sound, the latter did not want to let such a powerful competitor into that section, and was trying to fight the Southern Pacific off. The Southern Pacific, however, is evidently bent on getting to Seattle. The other company has therefore kept dilly-dallying with its rival in order to gain time. The Southern Pacific will now build its own road into Seattle, laying [illegible] miles of new track.

Railroad construction, Mr. Maxwell said, was very lively in the Northwest just now, and there are rumors of many new schemes, some of which he thought might develop into something practical, though there were many paper enterprises that would die of themselves. The Manitoba line was reaching westward and is watching every available chance to enter Oregon, either by its own line or through new connections. It is now as far West as Helena, Mont., and is very anxious to push forward to Missoula and connect there with a new line of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company. The latter corporation is building eastward into the Coeur d'Alene country and has been having a race with the Northern Pacific, which is also bent on securing the traffic of that section and surrounding country. There has been some trouble about the right of way in crossing the territory of the Indians there, but the O. R. & N. Co. would doubtless be able to extend its line to all points which it desired to reach. A large force of men is at work extending the line of the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company to Murray, which is on the route to Missoula, as surveyed by that company. When Murray is reached the Oregon Railway & Navigation Company will have [illegible] miles of new road.

THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE

Two Candidates in the Senate for the Gubernatorial Chair

SACRAMENTO, Feb 12—A bill before the legislature to encourage county fairs authorizes the board of supervisors to appropriate not to exceed $1000 in any one year for that purpose.

Senator Jones says that he is a candidate for governor before the next democratic state convention. This makes two candidates who are now making a record for that office in the senate. The other is Yell of Mendocino.

Neither of the committees on commerce and navigation have yet considered the bills before them to reduce the pilotage charges at the port of San Francisco and break up the towboat monopoly.

The committee on printing of the assembly has been wrestling for two days over a bill of $150 expended in the Bartlett memorial exercises, which has finally resulted in its being cut down $50, and this while $100 a day is being drawn out of the contingent fund by useless employes.

A constitutional amendment limiting the number of attaches of the senate and assembly has now been favorably reported from the senate judiciary committee.

Owing to the fear that the bill proposed by Attorney-General Johnson to reassess the railroads belonging to the Southern Pacific Company might be construed to exempt street assessments in San Francisco, Johnson has agreed to amend it so that it shall apply only to state and county taxes. This he thinks will not impair its constitutionality.

The assembly judiciary committee last night, after considering the Ostrom bill, agreed to send for the books of the Southern Pacific Company in order to ascertain how much that corporation [illegible].

AGAINST LOTTERIES

The Nevada Proposition Defeated by 300 Majority

VIRGINIA, Nev., Feb 12—It is now estimated that the lottery amendment has been defeated by 300 votes. The anti-lottery law that for years has been a dead letter will now be enforced, and probably church raffles will be prohibited as coming under the same law.

Smallpox at Carson

CARSON, Nev., Feb 12—To-night seven cases of smallpox are reported in the Ormsby house, the leading hotel of Carson. The wife of the proprietor, several children, and a colored waiter were first taken.

ALONG THE WATER FRONT

A Vessel's Close Call—Wreckage Reported off the Coast

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—Among the arrivals noted at the Merchants' Exchange yesterday was the schooner Dare, Captain Terry, which arrived shortly after midnight after a passage of six days from Coos Bay, with a cargo of 300,000 feet of lumber for the Simpson Lumber Company.

The captain states that the schooner was entering the harbor here Sunday evening, and that when she arrived midway between North Heads and Lime Point the wind fell calm, and the vessel began to drift toward the rocks. The anchor was let go and fortunately held the vessel. The captain sent two of his crew in a boat to this city to notify the towboat men. One of the tugs having steam up immediately proceeded down the bay, but when near the entrance to the harbor her machinery or steering gear became temporarily disabled, and she could go no farther. The tug Hercules went up later, after getting steam up, and, picking up the schooner, towed her from her dangerous position. Another tug during the night docked the schooner at the wharf here.

The tonnage of the vessels on the way to this port is [illegible], as against [illegible] at the same time last year.

Captain Jurgensen of the schooner Eureka, which arrived to-day seven days from Coquille river, reports that he passed what appeared to him to be the coverings of the hatch of a large ship off Point Reyes when coming in. The wreckage was painted green and the galvanized bolts looked quite new. The captain supposed that some vessel had been wrecked close by here during his absence, and the first question he asked on coming ashore was what ship had been wrecked while he was away.

The American ship M. [illegible] was sold to-day to Captain Thompson for about $[illegible]. The ship is of [illegible] tons register.

THE LETTERS WERE NOT RECEIVED

Complaint of Captain Leary Against the German Consul at Samoa

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—Captain Leary of the United States steamer Adams, recently stationed at Samoa, claims that the letters sent him at Samoa from the state department, Admiral Kimberly and others did not reach him. The only letters for him to come to this port came to him at Samoa, though many other letters were in the Samoan postoffice at the same time. He thinks that Dr. Knappe, German Consul at Samoa, is responsible, and has called the attention of the postoffice department to the matter.

G. A. R. ENCAMPMENT

Arrival of Guests at Stockton in a Special Car

STOCKTON, Cal., Feb 12—Department Commander Goodman of the G. A. R. and staff arrived in a special car this evening to attend the encampment, which begins to-morrow. They were met at the depot by an escort consisting of national guards under the command of Colonel Lea and the local post of the G. A. R., and conducted to the headquarters at Yosemite hotel, where Mayor Shippee and S. M. Woods, in behalf of the city, extended a cordial welcome and offered the visitors the freedom of the city. Commander Goodman replied briefly and gracefully. The encampment begins to-morrow in the Masonic music hall.

Another Heavy Failure.

SACRAMENTO, Feb 12.—Railroad Commissioner A. Abbott, cashier of the California state bank, to-day made an assignment for $30,000 for the benefit of his creditors. Abbott stated that he had been at great expense in pumping water from the Magnolia mine, in Butte county. The property assigned consists of real estate and personal property amounting to $30,000, beside a one-half interest in the Magnolia mine, and this is considered sufficient to meet all liabilities. The bank is not involved.

In the superior court this morning T. D. Littlefield, acting for D. O. Mills, recovered judgment from Abbott for a note for $[illegible],000.

Up to date the Central Pacific has had little use for its snow plows. Preparation was made last fall for heavy snows, and a rotary plow of the most improved pattern has been lying at Ogden all winter, but has only been on the line two or three times. There were continuous snows for three months between Ogden and Humboldt, but they were light and traffic was not at all disturbed.

The Canadian Pacific people say they will shorten their through connection from San Francisco to Chicago under their own control. J. Attenheimer of New York, immigration agent for the line, arrived in the city to-day.

Clearing House Elections

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—At the annual meeting of the San Francisco Clearing house to-day officers were elected as follows: President, John McKee; secretary, J. S. Hutchinson of the Sather Banking Company. A resolution was adopted recommending the several banks to undertake collections, drafts and business paper at points outside San Francisco under an agreement with the depositors that such collections shall be undertaken only for account and at the risk of depositors.

In Search of a Postoffice Site

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—The postoffice site commission has resumed its search for a suitable piece of property since President Cleveland affixed his signature to the act increasing the amount which may be paid to $500,000. From all reports the commission is having a hard struggle with the thrifty property holders, and several shrewd men having property in various parts of the city which need pushing are seizing this opportunity to boom their various neighborhoods.

Heirs to a Fortune

Special Fruit Trains

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—The Central Pacific will soon begin running special daily fruit trains to the East, the first one leaving next Saturday. The specials would have been put on two or three weeks ago, but the Eastern markets have been filled with the Florida crop of oranges, and the home commission men did not want to come into competition with the Florida trade. The trains will be run as fast as on passenger time.

Alleged Attempt at Bribery

LOS ANGELES, Feb 12—In the United States district court this morning Juror Eckert McGarvin stated to Judge Cheney that an attempt had been made to bribe him by ex-chief of Police Cuddy in the case of the Fruitvale Brandy Company, on trial for making false returns to revenue officers. An order was issued summoning Cuddy to appear before the court to-morrow. Cuddy denies the charge.

The Julia Ray a Total Loss

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—Word reaches here that the steam schooner Julia H. Ray has become a total loss. The attempt to cross the bar in the face of the ebb tide was the cause of the accident. The wreck was sold for $2300, but not even her anchors and chains will be saved, and it is doubtful if the purchasers will get $100 out of the wreck.

The Union Men Went Out

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb 12—The boilermakers' union last night succeeded in withdrawing from the Judson Iron Works all the remaining union boilermakers at work there, and to-day Judson is at work with one solitary non-union boilermaker.

The Chicago Board of Trade

CHICAGO, Feb 12—The bull fever on the board of trade raged this morning. Wheat opened wildly excited, with shorts rushing to cover contracts. It was evident that the market was badly oversold. Before noon May wheat had advanced to $1.0[illegible]. A good part of the buying was on country orders on account of exhausting the margins. Hutchinson was covering his short sales yesterday. Altogether it was the most exciting day experienced for a long time, and a tremendous amount of wheat changed hands, the bull clique making some handsome profits.

NATIONAL REPUBLICAN LEAGUE.

A National Convention To Be Held in Baltimore This Month

The national convention of the republican league of the United States, in convention assembled at the league headquarters in New York city on December 19, 1888, pursuant to the call previously issued in accordance with the constitution of the league, upon motion made and seconded agreed to and did adjourn to meet at Ford's opera house in the city of Baltimore, Md., at noon on Thursday, February 28, 1889, and to continue in session thereafter during such hours as said convention shall determine.

The business which properly will come before the convention will be the reports from the officers of the league, the election of officers and members of the executive committee for the ensuing year, the fixing of the place of meeting of the next national convention of the league, and such other business as may at the convention be brought forward by the delegates assembled.

Let not the victory just achieved suffice for the present, nor let it lull us into indolence or neglect of duty. The league must be maintained in all its power and usefulness, and be extended into the only remaining seven Southern states where it has not been established. Without ostentation or undue claim to importance, the league in all its branches has faithfully and assiduously worked for republican success, the end for which it was organized. It has accomplished that work, but now the still greater work of preserving the supremacy of the republican party, of retaining the control of congress, and of creating an absolutely free and honest vote at the polls in every section of the Union presents itself and demands an earnest response from league members in every section of the republic. To accomplish these grand results the organization of local clubs and state leagues must go on, and the detail of system in the work must be pursued with vigor and energy. Already democracy has realized its urgent call for league organization, and admitted that the democratic league was formed too late for effective service in 1888, and it also announces the undeniable truth that the next contest begins in 1890, when members of congress will again be elected. Shall we as republicans be found indolent when in power? Shall we cease to cherish the results of our efforts or the maintenance of republican principles? The league asks the people, and through them, and from them let the answer come. Let the delegates at Baltimore respond to this call in tones which will inspire still greater effort and more thorough organization, so that not only shall Indiana and New York remain where they have been placed, in the ranks of the republican party, but also New Jersey and Connecticut be brought home, and the territories seeking admission be let in, and the republican Southern states be released from the bondage of unfair elections. Your presence and voice and action are needed to accomplish such results.

The Maryland State League invited the convention to assemble in Baltimore, and the invitation has been accepted. A local committee has been appointed to take charge of the details, and it is hoped that a large demonstration will be made at Baltimore, and from there we may proceed to Washington to join in the inauguration ceremonies on Monday, March 4, 1889. If league clubs of sufficient numbers are represented at Baltimore, a grand league parade will be had before they go to Washington.

All communications regarding hotel accommodations or other inquiries may be sent direct to the Hon. W. W. Johnson, chairman, No. 23 West Saratoga street, Baltimore, Maryland. By order Convention Republican League of the United States.

The Oregonian.

PORTLAND, WEDNESDAY, FEB. 13.

THE WATER QUESTION

Governor Pennoyer's remarks to a representative of THE OREGONIAN at Salem on Monday evening, after the failure of the effort in the house to carry the Portland water bill over the veto, indicate that he does not at all understand the position of the Multnomah delegation and of the Portland water committee, or comprehend the reasons by which they have been actuated. The governor said "If they want to they can introduce a bill without the non taxation clause and have it passed through both houses in short order. Their indisposition to do so shows that the water committee cares more to get the bonds free from taxation than to introduce Bull Run water into Portland."

This is a most unfounded and unjust accusation. It implies that the water committee are not actuated by a desire to supply Portland with water, but are "working a job" for speculation in bonds. In other words, that motives of private gain not considerations of public interest control their action. This is said of men who throughout their whole lives have as far surpassed Mr Pennoyer in public spirit in breadth of patriotism, in efforts to promote and sustain all worthy public objects, as in force of character in soundness of judgment in freedom from crotchets and in practical usefulness to the state.

The sole object of the Multnomah delegation and of the water committee has been to put the bonds on a footing that would least hamper their negotiation and bring the best results to the city. Their only reason for proposing that the bonds should be free from taxation was founded in their desire to have the bonds presented to investors on conditions that would enable the people of Portland to get the largest possible sum of money out of their sale. The members of the water committee are all active business men. Such capital as they can command is required for use in their business, and a 5 per cent. bond, selling at a premium, presents no attraction to them. If they have money they can do better with it. But the surplus funds of insurance trust and other companies often seek these long investments at low rates of interest; they will not however, take a 5 per cent. bond, subject to 3 per cent. tax nor will they take the risk of bidding for bonds upon which such taxation may be imposed. Hence there can be no Oregon bidders; those who know best what the paying power of the city is are shut out and Eastern bidders of course will take advantage of this absence of competition and further will take the fact that no bids are offered here, where the value of the city's credit should best be known as an indication that the investment cannot be a very good one. All this will tend to make the cost of water supply greater to the city and can in no possible way aid the state. For nothing that can be done will ever bring in so much as a dime to the treasury from taxation of the bonds. Portland will be injured and injury to one member of the body, to one part of the state, is injury to all.

It is said however that the special object of the opposition is to prevent investment of Oregon money in these and other bonds. Is this sound judgment or good sense? It implies that we do not want our own people our own financial institutions to have opportunity for making investments in Oregon that we do not want our own people to make money but prefer to let the outside capitalist make it. Is it better then that all the interest from these and other bonds should be paid in New York and Boston that all the profits from such investments shall go to enrich residents of distant states? Is this the way to accumulate capital promote industry and create prosperity at home? We do not know that any of these bonds would be taken in Oregon but it would plainly be better for the state if all were and if our payments of interest were all made at home.

It seems to be supposed that if these bonds were taken in Oregon the money invested in them would be withdrawn from the tax rolls and that the state would lose so much revenue. But the money would not be taken from the tax rolls if it was ever on them though in fact money except in occasional small sums is never on the tax rolls nor ever will be. Money is represented in all sorts of property that changes hands and changes forms to meet the continual transactions of business securities take the place of securities credits are exchanged for credits merchandise, real estate property in all forms is bought and sold without passing money from one person to another. It is only visible tangible property that can be found and listed for taxation, and whether these bonds were taken in Oregon or not there would not be one dollar less or more of money or other property on the tax rolls of the state—except as general growth of business and creation of new property in Oregon as a result of increase of gain here would show in time on the tax rolls whereas if the profits of such investments are all made elsewhere there will be no gain whatever from them upon the tax rolls of the state.

But the money paid for the bonds would not be annihilated it would still be subject to taxation and would be taxed quite as much as before. The money received by the city for the bonds would be paid out at once for material and labor, and there it would be just as liable to taxation as ever. The transaction would withdraw no money from taxation.

The Multnomah delegation in the legislature the water committee of Portland have asked that the bonds be declared free of taxation not because they want to hide money away in them but solely because they have wanted the city to obtain the best possible results from its credit. And now though defeat of the original bill has made it impossible that these best results should be realized the committee actuated by public duty would undoubtedly prefer to make an attempt to go on with the undertaking even without any non taxation clause in the bonds. The bonds could be offered the committee could see how much they could get and then decide whether the public interests would allow them to accept any bid. If the bonds could not be placed or the loss should be greater than the city could bear the committee could make a statement and present an appeal to the legislature two years hence to which that body in the light of experience would be very certain to give heed. The need of additional water supply and of purer water at Portland is great and since we can't do better now we should try the bill without the non taxation clause. Then if we can do nothing with the bonds we can ask the next legislature to grant us relief. While it is certain that the bonds will not sell as well without the exemption as with it let us try how they will sell and go on if possible with the works.

The defeat of the Portland water bill was due largely and chiefly to Marion county. Could not that county remember that Multnomah has been its steadfast friend and supporter? It is due to Multnomah's representatives more than to those of any other part of the state that Salem has been provided with state buildings that the institutions of the state have been located at Salem that the state fair has been supported there etc., and Marion county ought not to stand in the way when the people of the city of Portland ask merely for legislative authority to carry out for themselves a great necessary undertaking. Some of Marion's representatives did support the Portland water bill, and so did the Statesman newspaper. No doubt all the representatives of the county really wished to do so, but some of them seem to have been browbeaten and coerced by the grange, led by Judge Boise.

A MENTAL CURIOSITY.

The present governor of Oregon has a brain like a kaleidoscope. Shake it and you are sure to get a picture but you never know what sort of a picture, and you are morally certain never to get the same picture twice. The governor's view of his constitutional powers seems to be that they are a private plaything not a public trust. The legitimate purpose of the veto power was not to afford the executive an opportunity to enact his own peculiar and eccentric views, but to call a halt, in case in a moment of passion or oversight, a legislature had passed a law that was sure to be thrown out of court. But Governor Pennoyer appears to view a public office not as a public trust but as a splendid opportunity to ventilate and enforce his peculiar personal opinions. To illustrate: The governor is an old time moss backed copperhead and when he became governor his first act was to enunciate the obsolete doctrine of state supremacy. This doctrine was offensive to nine tenths of Oregon opinion it was a burnt-out issue cremated in the fiery flames of civil war and yet Governor Pennoyer enunciated it more than twenty years after the close of the rebellion. In his curious conceit he seems to regard his election to the executive chair as a legitimate opportunity to emit and enact (if possible) what for lack of a better word we might call Pennoyerism. He manifests the same spirit in the matter of pardons. His private sympathies are moved either at the top or the bottom and he issues a pardon without the slightest regard for the public safety. Every movement of this extraordinary executive implies the conviction on his part that his executive powers under the constitution are private property. The veto power to him is a welcome opportunity by which he can publish to Oregon what Mr Pennoyer thinks on all matters—sacred or profane pious or impious practical or merely theoretical. He evidently thinks that a public trust is something that may be properly abused for the vindication and support of a stupid personal blunder. He took a position two years ago took it erroneously and without consideration, and he thinks it more important that he should be "consistent" than that Portland should have a water supply. But the people of Portland would like to trade off the governor's consistency for Bull Run water and to throw in the governor himself as boot in the trade.

INCREASED EFFICIENCY OF COUNTY SCHOOLS.

The superintendent of schools for Multnomah county Professor Wetzell is working up educational interests under his supervision with energy and zeal. Until within recent years the office of county school superintendent has been usually filled here in a sort of perfunctory way the chief duties in connection therewith being the examination of teachers and making the apportionment of the public funds. The emoluments of the office have not been sufficient to justify a capable man in giving his exclusive attention to its detail work and in associating it with other business the latter has usually claimed the lion's share of the time and attention of the superintendent. The fault has not been so much with the official perhaps as with the pay.

But whatever the cause many of the schools outside of the cities have dragged along in a lifeless way in consequence. Within the past few years much work of a systematizing nature has been done under the personal supervision and direct advice of the superintendent, and a corresponding activity in educational matters has been developed.

There is wisdom in choosing for this position a person who is not only a practical educator but who is zealous in the pursuit of his or her calling. Such a person will find time to devote to the work of organizing systematizing and directing educational effort that one listless in the cause would devote to other matters. Such a person may be in some sense a crank—all enthusiasts are generally supposed to be—but he keeps the schools moving, an exceedingly important thing in an age in which stagnation means uselessness.

It is believed that the schools of Multnomah county are in a more satisfactory working condition than ever before. Much of this is due to the effort that has been made within two or three years to advance the standard of work and instruct teachers in their duties. Old slipshod methods with their accompaniments of monotone and mischief belong to the schools of a past era and though these turned out in their day capital spellers tolerable readers and brisk solvers of the "rule of three" their requirements are not up to the standard of an age that moves by steam sees by electricity and finds in the realities of to-day fulfillment of the extravagant dreams of yesterday.

A GREAT ARTILLERIST

Our dispatches yesterday morning announced the death of General H J Hunt U S A. General Hunt deserves more than a mere careless notice for he was a great soldier as great a soldier in his arm of the service to the army of the Potomac as Drouot was to the army of the first Napoleon. General Hunt was graduated from West Point in 1839. Isaac I Stevens killed with Kearney at Chantilly led the class which included Halleck Ricketts Ord and Canby. General Hunt was the greatest artillerist that was produced by either army during our civil war. At first Bull Run as a major of the Fifth artillery he displayed great ability. He commanded our reserve artillery at Gaines' Mill at Glendale and at Malvern Hill at South Mountain Antietam Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville. At Gettysburg his wise caution in reserving the fire of our batteries enabled us to repulse Pickett's charge and General Hunt always claimed that if Hancock had not in his impatience overruled his orders Pickett's column could have been destroyed before it ever reached our first line. General Hunt commanded the artillery of the army of the Potomac from Gettysburg to Appomattox and next to the great chiefs Grant Sheridan and Meade General Hunt is entitled to renown. His story of Gettysburg is the best that ever has been written. At this battle General Hunt rode along Gibbons' front line and fired his revolver in the faces of the enemy. General Hunt was an intimate friend of General Gibbon commander of the department of Columbia and has more than once visited him at this post.

THE BLAME FIXED

A race conflict breaks out occasionally at West Point and generally develops features so ludicrous as to prevent a really serious view of the subject. The great stir in the Whitaker case a few years ago and which was only settled by conclusive proof that the colored cadet had bitten off his own ears is well remembered. The latest outrage is indeed a serious one. A cadet from Virginia, acting as captain mortally insulted a cadet of the chivalric blood of Maryland by seating a colored cadet from Ohio at the table with him. Nothing but blood could wipe out an insult so gross. Accordingly a challenge was given and accepted and the two Southern cadets punched each other's heads in a style that would have done credit to a melee in a bund's beer garden. In the opinion of the Baltimore Sun the entire blame for this disgraceful encounter rests upon the conscienceless Ohio representative who so far forgot the rights of Southern gentlemen in the national military academy as to appoint a colored cadet from his district.

Governor Pennoyer should engage this champion to defend his course on the water bill. He would find no difficulty in showing that the fault in the matter lies not with our conscientious executive or his shallow financial reasoning, but with the Multnomah delegation in particular and the citizens of Portland in general, who were so presumptuous as to frame and urge a measure in opposition to his excellency's well known views.

The Portland World says that H W Scott, of THE OREGONIAN will be the candidate of the anti Mitchell element in the legislature of '91 for United States senator.—Umpqua Herald

THE OREGONIAN didn't see this statement in the Portland World. Had it seen it it would have said as it says now that H W Scott will not be the candidate of any "element" for United States senator in 1891 or at any other time. He finds ample room in THE OREGONIAN for all his energies and would not step down from THE OREGONIAN to the United States senate or to any other official place. Here perhaps he may as well remark that he is probably almost the only man in the state who doesn't consider himself entirely fit for the position of United States senator and almost the only one who doesn't think he could edit THE OREGONIAN much better than it is edited now.

The bill to relocate the county seat of Polk failed in the house and the ambitious dreams of Independence have failed. Dallas has been the county seat since the organization of the county. It is centrally located and convenient for all business purposes. The result of a contest involving such a change could not have been beneficial enough if beneficial at all to have atoned for the bitterness that would have been engendered. Such things savor too much of a family quarrel to be edifying to the public or profitable to the participators.

There will not be money in the state treasury for all the wagon roads that are proposed. It will probably be necessary to issue bonds and the brethren who have beaten the Portland water bill should now get in and ask that the bonds be authorized and made non taxable. As this would be granger legislation no doubt the governor would approve it.

PORTLAND AND VICINITY.

RETURNED "AFTER MANY DAYS"—Last summer when many of Portland's citizens were enjoying themselves at the seaside a man named Slipper, in some manner lost in this city a check on the First National bank for $3100 It has never been clearly explained how he lost the check but it was supposed by somebody he lost it by chance, the usual way "as the parties mentioned in the old song did, or else he was swindled or hoodooed out of it. Any way he lost it, and at once stopped payment of it, which spoiled the other fellow's chance for collection A few days since Policeman Barry received the check in a letter from a man in Utah signed by a fictitious name. The writer stated that the check was no good to him and that Mr Barry might send it to the owner This he did, and it is to be presumed that Mr Slipper will not let it slip away from him again. Mr Barry has no idea who sent the check, nor who got it from Mr. Mr Slipper, as he was at the seaside at the time of the transaction

DISSATISFIED PATRONS.—There is no end of kicking, reported from time to time, about the street car lines of different companies. A number of complaints reached this office yesterday about the "service" of the Sunnyside Motor line with particular reference to the matter of transfer tickets. It seems that the company yesterday adopted a rule requiring those wishing to go to Sunnyside to take the connecting car on the west side, otherwise transfer tickets would not be given This ride to Sunnyside from Morrison street is cheap enough at five cents and the street car company's rules are easy enough to understand and observe. The neglect of drivers in not stopping cars when signaled, or in giving transfer tickets for wrong dates, there is no excuse or palliation for and the management should endeavor to ferret out and punish all such cases

TO BE A BLAZE OF GLORY. A force of men are at work under the supervision of Mr Samuel G Lawson of this city putting up the wires for lighting the Exposition building The contract for lighting the building was let to the California Electric Light company who agreed to have the work done within forty days from the signing of the contract The plant came up on the Oregon and was quarantined which delayed the work slightly but it is expected that it will be completed considerably within the time fixed There are to be sixty one arc lamps and twenty-four incandescent lamps. Of the latter sixteen will be placed in the sounding board in the music hall and eight in the chimes The music hall will have two rows of arc lights suspended its entire length, which will make it as light as day

THEY LOVE THEIR CHILD. The little offspring of an ill-assorted marriage has more than once been the means of re-uniting the warring parents This did not prove to be the case with Milton and Rosa Wilson who were divorced some time since by Judge Stearns. Both of the parents however, are loth to part from the minor child. Little eight-year-old Walter Wilson has been enjoying himself under the fostering care of Mrs Woods at the "Children's Home." The original decree of Judge Stearns which gave to Mrs. Wilson the full charge and care of her child, has been modified Walter will hereafter spend his Saturdays and half of his vacations with his father the mother retaining charge over him the remaining time.

SURVEYING PUBLIC LANDS.—Numerous petitions have been forwarded to the general land office asking for surveys of public lands in this state but although the work has in many cases been ordered advertised no one could be found to undertake it for the remuneration provided for by law Lately provision for augmented rates for work in places where surveying is very difficult has been made, and now Surveyor General Taylor has been directed to have the survey of T 36 S, R 14 W completed, the work by the approval of the secretary of the interior to be paid for at the increased rates. This township is six miles north of Ellensburg, Curry county and is the first land to be surveyed under the new regulations

THE NEW CHURCH.—The new stone church at Alder and Tenth streets is nearly covered in the slating of the chapel roof and one side of the roof of the main building being completed and the other side well along Slate roofs are not common here and this attracts considerable attention Several rows of the slates below the dormer windows have rounded ends which form a contrast with the others and improve the appearance of the roof The plasterers are at work in the chapel and the handsome cut glass windows are nearly all in The carpenters are ready to begin work as soon as possible and it is probable that the chapel may be ready for use by April 1

THE SUNKEN CARGO.—All the sugar recovered from the sunken barge at Albina was shipped to San Francisco on the steamship State of California last night The greater portion of it being in barrels was but little damaged but that which was in sacks has gone to sweeten the waters of the Willamette It is a pity that the pumping works were not near the barge as then a carload or two of lemons could be thrown in and the city might drink lemonade for a season The chubs and suckers below Albina will grow fat on their unusual saccharine surroundings, and the sturgeon will have a share.

WHITE FISH IN CRATER LAKE.—Arrangements have been made to have some of the white fish sent out to Klamath lake retained and sent up to Crater lake as soon as the road is opened. Crater lake is so deep, 2000 feet in places that it is not much affected by changes of temperature and it is not supposed to freeze over in winter There is a great deal of insect life in the lake in the summer and there is but little doubt in regard to the fish doing well there The white fish go off into deep water in the winter and in this respect they can surely be accommodated in Crater lake

NO PLACE LIKE PORTLAND.—Dr J M F Chalmers and wife have returned to Portland after an absence of three years in New York city where the doctor after graduating from Bellevue Hospital Medical College with honors has been surgeon in one of the principal hospitals. They are visiting relatives at 251 Alder street. Both Dr and Mrs Chalmers have been very sick in New York and for a time grave fears were entertained of their recovery Their many friends in Portland will be gratified to learn of their restoration to health, and return to this city

DOWN THE MOUNTAIN.—Mr J F Ryan late of the Truckee Lumber Company who, while on his way to this city from Tillamook with Mr F B Handley went over a bluff on the Devil's Backbone, horse and all is now employed in Major Handbury's office He says he did not ride the horse down the 300 feet descent, but when he felt the animal going over he jumped off and slid and rolled and tumbled after it Had he been on the horse during his descent he would have been all broken up

PASSED AWAY.—Dillon Hoskins of Hardman Oregon died of heart disease January 21 1889 He was born in Ohio, and when about grown started West first to Indiana then to Illinois then to Iowa and in 1852 crossed the plains to Oregon and settled in Linn county near Scio He remained there until about ten years ago when he moved to Morrow county He left an aged companion and twelve children to mourn their loss

WILL LIVE IN CLOVER.—A number of sacks of clover timothy and alfalfa seed have been received at the office of Major Handbury United States engineer They are for Admiralty light house on Whidby island to be used in seeding down the grounds there [illegible] all the way from Washington and these [illegible] probably [illegible] The keepers at Admiralty lighthouse will live in clover hereafter

LYING VERY SICK. Mr George H Durham who has been at Baker City since January 11 taking testimony in the cases of the Isaacs against the Nelson Mining Company covering the same status 86 returned home a day or so since to find his son very sick with [illegible] threatened with an attack of typhoid fever He will not be able to go back for some time but hopes the boy will soon be better

WORK ON THE DEPOT. The two story section of eighty feet in the center of the Union freight depot on North Front street to be used as offices is nearly completed workmen being now engaged [illegible] roof [illegible] and end of the depot has been [illegible] so that the work of driving piles for the [illegible] commenced The building is to be completed by the end of April

OPEN ALL NIGHT.—Since the reopening of the Portland saloon at No 16 Stark street, by its present popular proprietors the [illegible] run upon the place has necessitated the employment of another first class mixologist For the accommodation of their late and early patrons Messrs Franzius & Hall will hereafter keep open all night.

ORANGE BLOSSOMS.—The marriage of Mr Frank Streibig and Miss Maggie Gilbert took place at the Cathedral corner of Stark and Third streets yesterday at 9 o'clock Rev Father O Dea officiated The affair was an exceedingly quiet one and soon after the ceremony Mr and Mrs Streibig departed for the Sound on a wedding trip

UNITED IN MARRIAGE. Mr Jefferson A Davis of Salem and Miss Margaret F Fitch were married last evening by Rev C F Clapp at the residence of H O Severance West Park street. A large and fashionable assemblage of ladies and gentlemen were present to witness the marriage ceremony

THREE BIG BARGAINS. 100 pieces house lining 33 yards for $1 00 Ten pieces double faced portiere cloth, 8 yards for $1 00 Eighteen pieces all wool Henrietta cloth, latest shades 50 cents per yard J Sellling & Co First and Taylor

THE COWLITZ.—The Toledo goes up to day on a river improvement expedition She will take out a number of snags and deepen the channel The first good rain she will resume her regular route to Toledo

THE GREAT CARPET SALE of the Oregon Furniture Co still continues Particular attention is called to the extra fine lot of curtains included in this sale

MR. COURSEN'S THIRD CONCERT Will be given next Friday at Masonic hall Miss Cook and Master Alfred Holt will be the instrumental soloists

CITY TAXES.—The tax roll is now in the hands of W H Mounsey, 106 First street, and all are requested to call and pay their taxes at once

ICE CREAM SODA.—From this day on ice cream soda made from pure fruit syrup will flow over Baum & Brandes marble counters.

VALENTINE SOCIAL.—Don't fail to go to the Unitarian social to-night and select one of the pretty hand-painted valentines.

BURKHARDT BROS.—Florists, Twenty-second and O streets, sell cut flowers very reasonable.

EAST PORTLAND NEWS ITEMS.

Demand for Houses—Reported Very Sick—Dedication—Fourth Street—Various Notes

Dr Flinn who is having two new cottages erected on I and Eighth, stated yesterday evening that the first load of timber was hardly on the ground when he was approached by a gentleman who wanted to secure the house in advance of its construction Since then he has been asked three or four times every day if his houses were rented This has been the experience of every one who has built since the first of the year The building outlook on the East Side for the present year is something wonderful There has scarcely been a day that work outdoors this winter so far could not be continued without interruption While not much of a stir is being made in the southern portion there are no less than thirty new houses going up south of U street. Along the dividing line between East Portland and Albina there is great activity in building and improvement of grounds

CHURCH DEDICATION

The Evangelical church that has just been completed at La Camas was dedicated last Sunday as the Ebenezer church of the Evangelical association Rev C C Poling the presiding elder conducted the services in a very impressive manner which had a most marked effect on the large congregation present The people responded nobly to the call to wipe out the indebtedness on the building, which amounted to nearly $400 So the church was dedicated free of debt. The building is a frame structure 26x40 and twenty feet in the clear with arched ceiling and gothic windows, all hard finished It occupies a prominent and sightly location in the prosperous town and the people have great reason to be proud of the neat and comfortable structure The pastor is grateful for the material aid that was given by friends in Portland Albina and St. John's to the building of the church Meetings will be continued during this week by the pastor Rev H I Pratt. It is expected that a large and prosperous church will be built up in La Camas

SAD NEWS

A private telegram received from Medford yesterday contains the information that Mrs Kellogg wife of J Kellogg, who moved from this place some time ago, was not expected to live The family has many friends and relatives in this city who will regret to hear the sad intelligence Mr Kellogg removed to Southern Oregon in the hope that the change would restore his wife's health It seems that the family has been living in the country near Medford and Mrs. Kellogg was brought into Medford Sunday last.

ON FOURTH STREET

With the completion of the elevated roadway on Fourth street, and the full extension of the same from N to U street, a most important improvement is finished Teams are now passing over this newly improved portion, and it is practically opened to the public It will give a needed relief from Fifth street, which in rainy seasons is almost impassable

PERSONAL AND GENERAL.

The gutter between Breyman's block and Logan's corner was opened up yesterday

David Hart will be examined before Justice Mayo to-day, at 1 P M, on a charge of larceny

Major Hilton will lecture to-morrow night in Hall & Stott's hall Admission free All are invited

Mr D T Brown has returned from Texas where he went several months ago. He went to Salem last night.

B T Arthur the brother in law of Mr A W Llewellyn, has been visiting the family of the latter with his wife Their home is at Spokane Falls and they returned there Monday

FRAUDS ON FARMERS

The Pacific Rural Press comes from an Eastern exchange a column relating to frauds attempted on farmers of which we give a synopsis. It is surprising that a journal so well known should seem to endorse statements that are the most unmitigated bosh and is not aware that such bogus claims are easily exposed.

The exchange tells of a farmer who received a letter from a stranger who made ordinary inquiries concerning the country and its resources. He answered it and not long after received notice that his name was to a note for $700 in a neighboring bank. The stranger whose letter he had answered had used his signature, cut off the writing above it and replacing it with a promissory note. He did not deny his signature but defended the suit and lost, having the $700 to pay. This was in Indiana.

A map peddler comes along and tries to sell his maps to school directors. They decline but give him their name and he transforms the paper they signed into an order for maps.

Another man comes along with something used by farmers. He has, he says, a sudden call home where a child or wife is ill and asks leave to deposit a wagon load of his wares under a shed. He starts off but comes back and asks the good man to give him his name and address. Before long the farmer finds a large number of wagon jacks or whatever it may be shipped to him, ordered over his signature.

A tract or Bible agent or colporteur pretended at least comes to a good church-going farmer, introduces himself, stops awhile and then demands his bill. It is nothing, but he insists on paying something and then asks the farmer to sign his name in his blank book with the amount paid as his voucher to the society he serves. This becomes a promissory note and falls into the hands of some "innocent purchaser" and must be paid.

It is possible that such frauds are attempted, but the newspaper that relates them and tries to carry the conviction that there is no remedy is simply making its own ignorance public. No such fraud can succeed if exposed. If a letter is changed to a promise to pay it can only be done by using chemicals to obliterate the first writing. It is not possible to do this without detection for the use of the chemicals must show when scientifically examined. That is prima facie proof of fraud and coupled with evidence from the signer will constitute a legal defense. In all these instances want of value received can be shown and the farmer can make oath he never signed such a note and deny its validity. The burden of proof will lie in the man who owns the note and if fraud is evident he has no case. Of course it is vexatious to be troubled in this way but law and equity affords a remedy against all frauds.

Oregon legislators, with all of their timidity, and notwithstanding the potent influence of the granger lobby, have been discounted on one point by Wisconsin lawgivers. A Madison news item furnishes the following: "Mr Legler's bill provides that cows with calves shall be milked twice a day unless milked by the calves." Is it not possible that our granger friends in their blind zeal to defeat the Portland water bill have grossly neglected interests of more vital concern to themselves?

Paris green, sprinkled on cabbage is said to be death to the insects that delight to feed on the succulent leaves of the young plant. A case of poisoning near Olympia a few days ago gives rise to the suspicion that the deadly properties of the substance may extend to persons who eat the vegetable after it has become fully matured.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Sodaville has yielded another rich soda spring and people there want to make a public park of the site and have it kept for perpetual pleasure and a health resort for all time. California has kept some famous springs and our state can favor the project with safety. A great value attaches to a good medicinal spring and Oregon should do something to prevent the contamination of a few of the best of them. A few miles of railroad will give connection with Lebanon and Albany and if this spring fills the expectations of the public it can be made of great value in many respects.

Lincoln had concluded to learn the trade and be a blacksmith when some man who represented the ways of Providence, recognizing his good sense, suggested him for the legislature and he was elected. This one man['s] prescience was worth everything to America and Lincoln made his first speech as follows: "I presume you all know who I am. I am humble Abraham Lincoln and my politics are short and sweet. I favor [illegible] internal improvements and a high protective tariff. These are my principles. If I am elected I shall be thankful; if not it will be all the same." Indeed this was short and sweet and went to the right spot, for he was elected.

Deep sea fishing is to be one of the great interests of the future and is already assuming large proportions. The Yaquina company organized in December with $40,000 capital and has since increased to $[illegible]. It has laid out a large scheme of operations including cold storage warehouses, large steam and sail vessels, land and building at Yaquina and even a [illegible] plant for the town [illegible] to supply the town. Many people here in Portland who have saved some money by hard work are investing in the deep sea fishing scheme and seem confident of good returns. This is a new source at least newly opened and Yaquina will soon resemble the town of Cape Cod and all along shore on the New England coast, and it will probably have better [illegible] a better time for recreation.

Some California paper prints a story that Miss Emmaline Wollum was a cattle queen whose herds of grade Short Horns, Devons and Herefords with an occasional Polled Angus thrown in to effect roamed the vales and wilds of Wallowa. The writer worked himself into quite a fever of admiration for this imaginary heroine he had conjured from the depths of his own moral consciousness and he made every penny a line that was in it from the Examiner which journal is not always an examiner after truth however. One consequence of his story is that the postoffice at [illegible] is crowded with letters from all parts of the world written by idiots who believe the story and want to borrow money from or get a job from or marry this queen of the Wallowa range.

A contemporary says that Dakota's offset by Montana once more [illegible]. Perhaps this is reckoned without counting the host of republicans in the mountain state. A Portland man was at Butte just before the election the first of October when they were making great demonstrations there with torchlight processions and barbecues. The Portlander said not a word about politics and when one evening he was among a crowd of democrats he inquired of them what was the politics of the territory. The answer came promptly: "Montana is republican, but we are going to carry it democratic once more by offering them a candidate who possesses great personal popularity." Clark, their candidate, is a rich mine-owner and banker and very generous. He lavished money, while his opponent was not a man of wealth, only a lawyer of good standing at Helena, who was elected by thousands of majority. The result terrified the unterrified but they claimed there was some question of labor that intervened to defeat their man as Cornelius was defeated here. They concede, on the spot, that a great number of republicans have come in recently and that Montana is no longer to be relied on. Still, because they want to be admitted they urge that the territory can be redeemed if this democratic congress admits Montana to the Union.

Some timid people who live within a hundred miles of the ocean are afraid of war with Germany as they think we have no coast defences and Bismarck can send his ironclads and stave in the whole line of the American continent. In the first place Germany won't try to fight America for if we haven't a navy we have what Germany has not, the money to make one. In the next place there won't be any war worth talking about. The case is hypothetical entirely and hasn't as much foundation as the suit brought for a kettle borrowed and returned cracked where the defendant proved that the kettle was cracked when he borrowed it, whole when he returned it and that he never had it. This was equal to proving an alibi, and Germany will prove an alibi if we ever try to pick a quarrel with her.

The following tomfoolery had its run through the state press:

[illegible] to the legislature [illegible] of Lane county [illegible] the passage of a bill authorizing the county commissioners to issue $60,000 in [illegible] bonds to build a new court house and jail.

And yet the Eugene State Journal was facetious because Portland wanted water bonds to be untaxed. Is a whole some court house any more necessary than wholesome water? But Portland will chew away on Willamette water for a generation yet to come if necessary and has no further remarks to make. Eugene can have her court house and should imitate Salem and have Justice holding her scales on top of the cupola and be sure to have the other hand point this way.

The Oregon Normal schools are criticised as superficial in their teaching so much so that the college and university representatives of Oregon last July condemned them, almost unanimously as incompetent. If the state is to have such schools they should be first class. If we cannot support three that are good enough let us try what we can do with one at a time and not make the mistake of connecting them with religious institutions but have them entirely secular. It is not because a denominational school may not be good enough, but no such institution can suit the whole people, while no one will object to schools that have no such characteristic. The state as a state has nothing to do with religion save in the abstract, and if a state school of any kind is to be popular and useful it must have no sectarian color. Let us have one good Normal school and make it a credit and have more when we need them and can afford to support them.

Mrs. Jim Westfall is a Chinese woman who may not feel able to keep a private tutor and may possibly and naturally like the society of American youth. She wants to improve her mind and Jim Westfall, a No. 1 Chinaman who dwells at Albany, wants his wife's mind improved. So every week day morning Mrs. Jim gracefully waddles to the public school and tries to be a scholar. Thereupon the blue blood of Albany runs riot in the veins of its first citizens. They are Americans of high degree and here is a Chinawoman who has almond shaped eyes and black hair and a tawny olive complexion who claims a seat in the schoolroom. She is 23 years of age, which is over school age, and they have objections to her they don't care to name. Some say they will take their little ones out of the school and the Democrat presents the case and asks the authorities to consider. Surely the school directors of the city of Albany, the coming railroad center of upper Willamette, will "consider." We confidently expect to learn that one of two things has occurred: that Mrs. Jim Westfall or the public school she attends has suspended. We hope the school will not suspend.

HANDLING GRAIN

ADAMS, Feb 10, 1889.

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Will you allow a farmer to state a few facts in regard to the proposed elevator system? A majority of the farmers of the Inland Empire cannot very readily dispense with the use of the grain sack now in use. Mr. Michener in his statement to you said that the farmer could build granaries for 2 cents a bushel. Will he say he can contract to build a few at that rate?

But the greatest objection is to putting the grain into the granary and taking it out. To [illegible] it will take four men and three teams to handle the grain from the machine to the granary. This would cost $9 a day without counting board and feed.

This calculation is based on hauling the grain less than half a mile. Should the distance be above that it would require more men and teams which would increase the expense as the distance increased. And again when it is taken out of the granary another expense will have to be added to the above. It would also require at least four hundred sacks to handle the grain from the machine to the granary.

I believe Mr. M. stated in his first interview that at present wheat to be shipped around Cape Horn required to be sacked, but in a few years there probably would be a canal across the isthmus, then wheat could be shipped in bulk. Possibly the canal and the Cascade locks will be completed about the same time. If so most of the present farmers will have been carried across the isthmus; in other words a generation will have passed away. Still there is a possibility of the government taking hold of these much needed improvements and getting them completed in a reasonable time.

Believing that wheat should be economically handled and should be guarded against any injury, yet it seems to me this could all be done with elevators in Portland and allow the farmers to haul their sacks until the time when wheat can be shipped in bulk.

Any regulation that will cheapen the handling of grain will be acceptable to the farmer. Reduction of freight, cheaper pilotage and towage with the cheaper handling, will all be of benefit to the farmer and as he prospers so do the towns and cities.

MORALS IN LITERATURE.

Edmund Yates in London World

Elderly people can recall a time when Jane Eyre was considered an immoral book, when mothers and governesses would have turned pale at seeing that impassioned love story in the hands of the young person. Indeed the very origin of the [illegible] that [illegible] education which [illegible] is the [illegible] about the Miss Brontë [illegible] wrote a naughty novel. [illegible] to those who are a few [illegible] in literature as in all other things to note how far we have traveled on the broad gauge of toleration within the forty years that have gone by since Jane Eyre was published, an interval which has brought to us the serious consideration by male and female as to whether M. Zola's later novels are or are not advantageous reading for the English people. Only indeed by going back upon the past and recalling the books which ranked highest on chiding [illegible] can we appreciate the progress that has been made.

There was a day when [illegible] Byron's Don Juan in fear and trembling, feeling that it was [illegible] to touch that famous poem, glancing nervously here and there at the page lest some evil thing should [illegible] out from among those [illegible] like an adder out of the [illegible] of heather and dwarf furze. [illegible] Don Juan [illegible] its merits and demerits. [illegible] from Jane Eyre to Swinburne, from Charlotte Brontë to Mrs. Campbell Praed is a short step in comparison with the leap from [illegible] to Zola. Women have been brought up in the idea that Fielding means pollution, that to open a volume of Tom Jones is to put themselves outside the pale of womanly modesty. Yet how milk and watery is Fielding's profligacy, how meek and mild his coarseness when measured against the realistic school of modern France! His most hazardous situations are so gently handled that one smiles at the thought of Thackeray's reiterated lament that it was not permitted to a novelist of his day to write like Fielding.

TWO OFFICIAL REPORTS

Visit of the Joint Committee to the State University.

THAT INSTITUTION IS A MODEL

Biennial Report of the Board of School Land Commissioners—A Statement of Collections Turned Over to the Treasurer

SALEM, Feb 12.—Following is the report of Senators J. C. Carson and J. H. Raley and Representatives William M. Ladd, J. B. R. Morelock and J. I. Ro[illegible], composing the joint committee instructed to visit the University of Oregon:

To the Honorable the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon:

We your committee appointed under house concurrent resolution No 9, do most respectfully submit:

That in accordance with said resolution your committee spent the entire day and evening on February [illegible] in a careful and [illegible] examination of the various departments and workings of the university of Oregon.

We deem it at this time a fit [illegible] in this manner to publicly express our appreciation of the kind courtesies and [illegible] was [illegible] the faculty and officers of the university [illegible] them [illegible] kindness we are indebted for the [illegible] information [illegible] to furnish regarding one of the most worthy and creditable institutions of the state.

We [illegible] department [illegible] with special [illegible] and [illegible] are [illegible] with [illegible] completeness [illegible] order. We [illegible] impressed with the patent [illegible] with which both [illegible] and students [illegible] the great educational work of the state and can recall [illegible] report [illegible] the university of Oregon [illegible] is an institution [illegible] each individual citizen [illegible] The results of its work are [illegible] known and will [illegible] the knowledge [illegible] that [illegible] university [illegible] second to [illegible] other institution on the coast.

Your committee [illegible] tions, and [illegible] testify to the thoroughness [illegible] the work and the high order of scholarship [illegible].

We are pleased to make a report to your honorable body that the present school year is an exceedingly prosperous one, the records showing an increase of fifty-six in the collegiate department over last year, or an increase of a little more than 41 per cent. This fact in itself bespeaks great credit for the management, and when taken in connection with the growing reputation of the institution for its diligence and thoroughness in the preparation and completion of its graduates, assures us that we cannot too strongly urge upon the state the necessity of lending such encouragement and assistance as will enable the management to complete and carry out the high grade of educational facilities for which the school was intended. Your committee was impressed by the earnestness and dignified bearing of the students—young men and women gathered from every portion of the state.

We recognize in the university of Oregon a school calculated to mature and fill the minds of the young men and women of our state with the higher educational attainments of a thorough collegiate course. We recognize in it a college for the completion of an education which will qualify the young men and women of our state to compete and cope with the collegiate graduates of any other state in the union.

Among the students in attendance are found the following counties represented by scholarships:

Baker	[illegible]	Clatsop	[illegible]
Benton	[illegible]	Coos	1
Douglas	[illegible]	[illegible]	1
Jackson	[illegible]	Klamath	[illegible]
Lake	[illegible]	Lane	[illegible]
Linn	[illegible]	Marion	10
Morrow	[illegible]	Multnomah	7
Polk	[illegible]	Umatilla	1
Union	[illegible]	Wasco	4
Yamhill	[illegible]
Total			70

These scholarships represent nineteen of the counties of the state.

Over one half of these scholarships are held by persons who without them would be unable to avail themselves of the opportunities they now enjoy. We are informed that many needy students work for their board, and this class of students, as a rule, stand highest in their classes.

We have made a careful examination of the books and records of the school and find them kept in a neat and intelligent manner, from which we are enabled to abstract the following facts relating to the students.

We find the whole number of students enrolled since the beginning of the present school year [illegible] September 17, 1888, to [illegible] 18.

The total number enrolled for the term ending December [illegible] 1888, was [illegible].

[illegible] enrollment [illegible] present term [illegible] and the number in actual attendance [illegible].

Of this number 87 are college students [illegible] post graduate students [illegible] preparatory students [illegible] college students [illegible] total [illegible] college work 78, leaving [illegible] as the number of preparatory students.

The benefit of the school we find to extend to all parts of the state as evidenced by the fact that of the total number of students enrolled [illegible] residing [illegible] have [illegible] the benefits of the university during the [illegible] year.

[illegible] the [illegible] of students [illegible] departments of the school [illegible] in a flourishing and satisfactory condition [illegible] instructors and students. The two departments [illegible] at Portland [illegible].

A most important feature of our investigation suggests itself in the fact that the poor [illegible] of the university, as those whose record is shown to be the highest [illegible] young men and women who [illegible] themselves of state scholarships and from the toiling labor earn a sustenance while in attendance upon the school, are the students who [illegible] as graduates to the honor of [illegible]. With this fact in view your committee has given much attention to the subject of free scholarships.

We find on examination of the rules governing similar institutions in other states, that the policy of giving free tuition has been generally adopted. Among the states which have adopted this policy are Arkansas, California, Colorado, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, [illegible], Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Virginia and Wisconsin while the state of Iowa charges an annual fee of $[illegible]. In behalf of the important educational interests of the state, we recommend a liberal policy on the part of our own state towards our university. The experience of the others of the Union fully indicates that the safest plan and the highest safeguard is to [illegible] higher education within [illegible] reach of the poor, because we cannot afford to be without the trained and ready intellect of the [illegible] minds.

[illegible] this policy [illegible] other states, your committee [illegible] fully convinced that the best educational interests of our state demand that the university of Oregon be placed [illegible] thereby placing [illegible] within the reach of the poor as well as the rich. We are convinced that this may be done with comparatively little additional expense or burden upon the state. The present assessment of one mill raises an annual revenue of about $8,000. In reducing this [illegible] one twenty-fourth more than at present, would raise [illegible] an annual [illegible] of $[illegible] a total annual income of about $[illegible] which, we are informed, would together with other resources of the university be sufficient under economical management to place the school upon the best [illegible] foundation.

We would recommend that all appliances [illegible] be required to pass [illegible] examination and in the same manner as is now practiced for the present system.

We have examined house bill No [illegible] introduced by Mr Gordon and find [illegible] it is more fully expressed in said bill, we would recommend the [illegible] the educational interests [illegible].

THE OREGON ALPINE CLUB

Held a Regular Meeting Last Night—Vice President Elected—Talks by Various Members

The Oregon Alpine Club held its [illegible] meeting [illegible] the [illegible] rooms last night.

The [illegible] was called to order at 8 [illegible] and in the absence of the president [illegible] J. R. Harrington was elected president pro tem.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and no corrections or objections being offered it was ordered that they stand approved.

W. H. Steel, as chairman of the committee on [illegible], reported that a contract had been [illegible] with [illegible] for the entertainments to be given by Bill Nye and James Whitcomb Riley on the nights of May [illegible]. Mr Steel further stated that negotiations were being made with the [illegible] club whereby that body will give two entertainments during the month of April.

A communication was received from Prof Lang, asking that his resignation be accepted as mineralogist of the club, he having lately removed to Idaho. Prof Lang also offered the club a valuable collection of minerals for the museum.

Under the head of reports from committees Mr Steel reported that he had been to Salem in the interest of the bills introduced through the efforts of the Alpine Club. The bill to prevent deer hunting, he said, had already passed the house, and he believed that there was no question but what it would pass the senate. The bill asking that the state establish a mining bureau is in the hands of the committee on mining.

The memorial asking congress to set aside a part of the Cascade range for a public park has already passed the house and will pass the senate without doubt, he said.

Mr. Warner on behalf of the committee on birds stated that his committee was corresponding with a party in Cincinnati with the view of purchasing fifty pair of cuckoos, fifty pair of bobolinks and fifty of southern red birds. At the suggestion of Mr Marquam, one of the committee, attempts would also be made to get some hermit thrushes.

Mr Steel made a report by proxy for D. P. Thompson, chairman of the room committee. The committee has decided that the best plan would be to intercede with the owners of the library building and see if another story can be added. The committee could only report progress, and ask for further time in which to make a report.

The names of Edgar W. Nye and James Whitcomb Riley were proposed for honorary membership and laid on the table to be acted upon at the next regular meeting.

On motion the resignation of Professor Lang was accepted.

Professor W. A. Wetzel was elected vice president of the club, vice C. A. Alisky resigned.

Mr Steel here took occasion to speak of the fact that Indians were leaving their reservations at all times, regardless of seasons, and that a great many thousands of deer were slaughtered by them in Jackson county and other adjacent territory. It was his opinion that this required legislation by law as much as deer skinning by hunters and trappers. He finally embodied his ideas in a motion that the club [illegible] communication to the secretary of the interior asking that some legal restrictions be placed upon the Indians.

A vote of thanks was tendered Messrs. R. A. Mi[illegible], [illegible] R. Harrington, W. B. Gilbert and John R. Wi[illegible], for their efforts to secure the passage of house bill No 1[illegible], and the public park memorial.

On motion, Prof J. [illegible] Clayton was elected to fill the vacancy of mineralogist.

In the absence of Rev. [illegible] Gilbert, who was expected to deliver a lecture on "What Is Wind," Mr Steel gave an interesting talk on [illegible] illustrating his discourse by two [illegible] this famous [illegible] of water.

Dr. C. H. Hall will address the club at the regular meeting in March.

HILLSBORO GRANGE RESOLUTION

Submitted for the Special Consideration of the Legislature

HILLSBORO, Feb [illegible]

The following resolutions were adopted unanimously by the Hillsboro grange, with the request that they be sent to THE DAILY OREGONIAN for publication:

WHEREAS, The corruption of the ballot [illegible] is one of the crying evils of our political system and a pure ballot as well as a free [illegible] great [illegible] is necessary to a republican form of government wherein the majority is supposed to rule; [illegible]

Resolved, That it is the sense of this grange that our state legislature should adopt the Australian method of voting or some modification thereof and we hereby urge the members from this county to work to secure the passage of a law to this end. And,

WHEREAS, The county school superintendents have made an expensive and unnecessary change in the text books for the public schools of this state; and

WHEREAS, The board of county school superintendents constitute an agency for a school book monopoly in this state and is a body over which the people have no direct control and are not [illegible] to the people of the state for any [illegible] or abuse of the trust confided to them therefore be it

Resolved, That we demand that the [illegible] text books be [illegible] by [illegible] of the legislature and that the [illegible] of county school superintendents be [illegible] and [illegible] it.

Resolved, That the state [illegible] the [illegible] of the public schools in the [illegible].

Resolved, That it is the sense of this grange that the state university and normal schools should not be supported by the state, and that [illegible] appropriation of money by the legislature for such institutions is taxing the people for the benefit of the rich and that if the state has any money to vote for educational purposes it should be given to the public schools, which have only five months of school in the year.

Resolved, That teachers whether graduates of state normal schools, agricultural college, state university or other colleges, shall not have the right to teach in the public schools unless such [illegible] certificates for teaching, until [illegible] where they teach as provided for the [illegible] from [illegible] competency.

Resolved, That the teaching of bookkeeping in our public schools should be authorized by law to take the place of a deal of [illegible] and [illegible] now wasted at the cost of taxpayers and to the injury of pupils [illegible] that [illegible] of our children complete their education in the public schools.

Resolved, That this grange demands that the [illegible] of the Columbia shall be [illegible] two feet [illegible].

Resolved, That this grange is opposed [illegible] exemption [illegible] bonds of any corporation [illegible] from taxation [illegible].

A Brutal Slugging Match

EVANSVILLE, Ind., Feb. 12.—John McCarthy of Boston and Arthur Upham of New York fought eleven rounds with two ounce gloves tonight. McCarthy weighed [illegible] pounds and Upham 157. McCarthy had the best of the fight, although he acted on the aggressive and hammered at Upham's face which he pounded badly and mutilated in a terrible fashion. McCarthy came out of it practically unscratched, while Upham was badly punished, but according to the agreement he had to divide the money he had [illegible] fought for.

We have advertised a great many different preparations [illegible] that have never taken the pains to [illegible] one. We are going to do it now for the first time. Chamberlain & Co., Des Moines, Iowa manufacture a cough remedy which is absolutely the best thing we have ever seen. We have used it in our family for the past year and consider it indispensable. Its effects are almost instantaneous, and there is no use talking, it is a dead shot on a cough or a cold. We don't say this for pay, but because we consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the best made, and we want the people to know it and use it.—Iowa Falls Independent. For sale by L. Blumauer.

PROTECTING THE FISH.

Full Text of House Bill No. 62, Now Before the Legislature.

The Measure Prohibits Weir Nets, Pound Nets or any Fish Trap Except Under Certain Circumstances—Penalties, Etc

Below is published the full text of house bill No 62 (introduced by Mr. Hahn) to prohibit the fishing for, catching or taking salmon fish in the Columbia river and its tributaries, where the State of Oregon has concurrent jurisdiction on the waters of said river and its tributaries with the territories of Washington and Idaho by means of weir nets, pound nets or fish traps:

WHEREAS, The salmon fishing industry of the Columbia river and its tributaries has suffered great injury and has greatly decreased in value by reason of the destruction of the salmon fish caused by the [illegible] of weir nets and fish traps [illegible] said river; and

WHEREAS, The danger to the lives and property of those engaged in the business of fishing for salmon fish in the said river has been greatly increased by the erection of such weir nets, pound nets and fish traps therefore,

Be it enacted by the Legislative Assembly of the State of Oregon:

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person [illegible] to erect, build, maintain [illegible] or [illegible] setting any [illegible] building or [illegible] in the Columbia river or its tributaries where the state of Oregon has concurrent jurisdiction [illegible] with the territories of Washington and Idaho any weir [illegible] fish trap [illegible] which [illegible] of any [illegible] which said nets [illegible] other [illegible] except [illegible] providing that such trap [illegible] extend for a greater distance [illegible] waters of said river or its [illegible] low water mark in front of and [illegible] the land [illegible] such trap [illegible].

SEC. 2. It shall be unlawful for any person [illegible] except the [illegible] with [illegible] provided [illegible] to fish for, catch or take in the waters of the Columbia river or its tributaries, where the state of Oregon has concurrent jurisdiction in the said waters of the said river or its tributaries with the territories of Idaho and Washington any Chinook salmon fish, steelhead or blueback by any of the means or contrivances mentioned in section 1 of this act.

SEC. 3. Any person or persons violating any of the provisions of sections 1 or 2 of this act, or who shall purchase or have in his possession any of the fish mentioned in section 2 of this act and caught in violation of said sections 1 and 2 of this act shall upon conviction thereof be fined in a sum of not less than $250 nor more than $500, to which may be added, in the discretion of the court, imprisonment in the county jail for a term not less than one month nor more than six months, for the first offense, and for each and every subsequent offense upon conviction thereof, shall be fined not less than $500 nor more than $1000, to which may be added in the discretion of the court imprisonment in the county jail for a term not less than six months nor more than one year.

SEC. 4. It shall not be lawful to fish for, take or catch any of the fish mentioned in section 2 of this act in the Columbia river or its tributaries where the state of Oregon has concurrent jurisdiction on the waters of said river and its tributaries with the territories of Washington and Idaho, by any means or contrivances whatever, in any year hereafter, during the months of March and up to the 10th of April and after the 10th of August and during the weekly close times in the months of April, May, June, July and up to the 10th of August, that is to say between the hours of 6 o'clock in the afternoon of each and every Saturday, until 6 o'clock in the afternoon of the Sunday following; and any person or persons fishing for, taking or catching, or who shall purchase or who shall have in his or her or their possession, any of the fish mentioned in section 2 of this act, and caught or taken in violation of the provisions of this section, shall upon conviction thereof be fined in a sum not less than fifty nor more than two hundred dollars for the first offense and for each and every subsequent offense upon conviction thereof be fined not less than one hundred dollars nor more than four hundred dollars, to which may be added in the discretion of the court, a term of imprisonment in the county jail for a period of not less than six months nor more than one year.

SEC. 5. One half of all the moneys collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid to the informer, if there be one, and the other half shall be paid into the school fund of the county where such offense may be tried.

SEC. 6. The payment of any fine [illegible] provided under the provisions of this act shall be collected and enforced in the same manner as provided by law in other criminal matters.

SEC. 7. Justices of the peace shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit court of all offenses mentioned in this act.

SEC. 8. All acts or parts of acts in conflict with this act are hereby repealed.

SEC. 9. Whereas it is important that [illegible] speedy remedy [illegible] to those engaged in catching [illegible] shall [illegible] and after its approval by the [illegible].

THOSE GOOD OLD TIMES

They had rigid manners and homespun breeches
In the good old times;
They hunted Indians and hung up witches,
In the good old times,
They toiled and moiled from sun to sun,
And they counted sinful all kinds of fun,
And they went to meeting armed with a gun,
In the good old times.

Yes, and they suffered year after year with painful, distressing diseases for which they knew no remedy. "Twenty years' Consumption" was one of them. Among the blessings of modern days, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery takes the highest rank as a cure for all Liver, Blood and Lung Diseases; as a consequence, it far outsells all other medicines of its class. Consumption is Scrofula affecting the lung tissues, according to all medical authorities, and for Scrofula in all its myriad manifestations no remedy has ever been found to equal the "Golden Medical Discovery." Hence, it has become famous as a remedy for Consumption. If afflicted, do not put off its use until too late. "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only Liver, Blood and Lung medicine ever sold, through druggists, under a positive guarantee of benefiting or curing in every case, or money refunded.

THE MARCH OF PROGRESS!

OUR LATEST IMPROVEMENTS!

"Competition is the Life of Trade" and if you have not seen our latest improved goods you cannot imagine how lively trade is or how hard our competitors have to work to keep within sight of us. Ask your retailers for the James Means $3 Shoe, or the James Means $4 Shoe according to your needs.

Positively none genuine unless having our name and price stamped plainly on the soles. Your retailer will supply you with shoes so stamped if you insist upon his doing so; if you do not insist, some retailers will coax you into buying inferior shoes upon which they make a larger profit.

JAMES MEANS' $3 SHOE UNEXCELLED IN STYLE UNEQUALLED IN DURABILITY AND PERFECTION OF FIT. MADE ALSO IN BUTTON & CONGRESS. JAMES MEANS' SEAMLESS $3 SHOE

JAMES MEANS' $4 SHOE CANNOT FAIL TO SATISFY THE MOST FASTIDIOUS. JAMES MEANS' $4 SHOE

Such has been the recent progress in our branch of industry that we are now able to affirm that the James Means $4 Shoe is in every respect equal to the shoes which only a few years ago were retailed at eight or ten dollars. If you will try on a pair you will be convinced that we do not exaggerate. Ours are the [illegible] and those who imitate our system [illegible] unable to compete with us in quality [illegible]. In our lines we are the largest manufacturers in the United States.

[illegible] traveling salesmen who recently visited the [illegible] of the Pacific Coast and Rocky Mountain [illegible] as follows:

[illegible] with the results of my trip. I have [illegible] succeeded in placing our full line [illegible] in every point I have visited [illegible]. This is a splendid [illegible] the retailers [illegible] charging [illegible] others at retail about double [illegible] the consequence is that the people who wear shoes are [illegible] as our JAMES MEANS' $3 and $4 SHOES [illegible] stamped on the soles of every pair are breaking down the high prices which have hitherto ruled in the retail markets there and when a retailer puts a full line of our goods in his store [illegible] is the demand for them."

Now [illegible] just stop and consider what the above signifies so far as you are concerned. It assures you that [illegible] shoes bearing no manufacturer's name or fixed retail price stamped on the soles [illegible] what you are getting and your retailer is probably making you pay double what your shoes have cost him. Now can you afford to do this while we are protecting you by stamping our name and the fixed retail price upon the soles of our shoes before they leave our factory so that you cannot be made to pay more for your shoes than they are worth?

Shoes from our celebrated factory are sold by wide awake retailers in all parts of the country. We will place them easily within your reach in any State or Territory if you will invest one cent in a postal card and write to us.

WHEAT—The market is on the mend Foreign cables report an advancing market, while Chicago is on the boom As yet the only effect on the local market is a renewal of that stiff holding off for exorbitant prices which has characterized the holders since the beginning of the decline Many of those now holding wheat in the interior bought at the top prices and are loth to part with it at a loss, and as they will not listen to export prices but little business is being done by shippers especially those who chartered at 50s and 52s 6d some of whose ships are due now On the present basis of freights shippers can pay $1 30 for Eastern Oregon but the interior price has advanced to $1 35 We quote nominal prices Eastern Oregon $1 30 valley, $1 35@1 37½

FREIGHTS—Slowly but surely the situation is veering around against ship owners Already 45s is the top price obtainable for even March cancellation It was reported on the street to day that the Ger bk Auguste had been rechartered by Allen & Lewis at 45s

EGGS—The market rules steady and quiet Receipts have fallen off some a fact which has had a tendency to strengthen the market Some sales have been made as low as 14c but we quote 15c

The Yaquina Jetty.

Yaquina Republican

Mr Polhemus expects to be able to build from 400 to 600 feet of the north jetty with the funds on hand The tramway to the point where the jetty proper will commence will be finished in about four weeks The quarry where rock is got is improving in quantity and it may not become necessary to open a new quarry this season Four scows are being constructed for the work on this side They will cost about $2000 each

FOR BRAIN FAG

Use Horsford's Acid Phosphate

Dr W H. Fisher, Le Sueur, Minn, says "I find it very serviceable in nervous debility, sexual weakness, brain fag, excessive use of tobacco, as a drink in fevers, and in some urinary troubles. It is a grand good remedy in all cases where I have used it."

NAVIGABLE WATERS.

Regulation of the Same by Action of Congress

U S DISTRICT COURT DISTRICT OF OREGON

Tuesday February 12 1889

THE CITY OF SALEM A F Reed Libellant No 2[illegible]

(1 THE REGULATION OF NAVIGABLE WATERS The power to regulate commerce among the several states comprehends the power to regulate the navigable waters of the United States on which such commerce may be or is carried and to this end congress may make any regulation concerning such navigation including the vessels engaged therein as may be necessary and proper to secure and maintain the safety and convenience of the waterway which regulations are so far applicable to vessels engaged only in intrastate commerce thereon as to those engaged in interstate commerce

2 REGULATION LIMITING THE NUMBER OF PASSENGERS The regulation contained in § 4465 of the R S forbidding a steamboat to carry more passengers than allowed in her certificate of inspection held to apply to such vessels engaged in carrying passengers on a navigable water of the United States between ports of the same state only

DEADY J

This suit is brought by the libellant A F Reed against the steamboat City of Salem and Robert Thompson her owner to recover sundry penalties for carrying more passengers than is allowed by the vessel's certificate of inspection

An exception is filed to the libel to the effect that the transportation of passengers in question was wholly within the state and was therefore not within the grant of power to congress to regulate commerce nor the jurisdiction of this court

Section 4189 of the Revised statutes declares "Every vessel propelled in whole or in part by steam shall be deemed a steam vessel within the meaning of this title" (52) and section 4400 of the same provides "All steam vessels navigating any of the waters of the United States which are common highways of commerce or open to general or competitive navigation except ing public vessels of the United States vessels of other countries and boats * * * for navigating canals shall be subject to the provisions of this title (52)

It is also provided in this title that there shall be an inspector of hulls and one of boilers in each district who shall inspect all steam vessels and when they approve a vessel and her equipment they shall make a certificate to the collector to that effect § 4417 R S

In case of a steamer carrying passengers other than ferryboats the number of passengers of each class that any such steamer has accommodation for and can carry with prudence and safety shall be stated in said certificate (§ 4464 R S) and if any steamer shall take on board any more passengers than the number stated in the certificate of inspection the owner shall be liable to any person who may sue for the same in the penalty of $10 for each such passenger (4465 R S) and such penalties shall be a lien on the vessel

It appears from the libel that on July 4 1888 the City of Salem was a vessel wholly propelled by steam and engaged in navigating the Wallamet river and was duly enrolled and licensed therefor that by her certificate of inspection she was only entitled to carry 400 passengers that on said day this vessel was engaged in carrying passengers from the port of Portland to other points and places on said river and within this district and did on four such trips carry in the aggregate 2010 more passengers than allowed by her certificate

The precise question raised in this case has never been passed on by the supreme court In the district courts there have been apparently conflicting decisions on the point

In the Gretna Green (20 Fed Rep 901) it was held that a steamboat equipped, enrolled and licensed for the navigation of the Ohio river and subject to the laws of congress was not liable under § 4492 of the revised statutes for carrying passengers in barges in tow the same not being equipped as prescribed by the supervising inspectors between different ports of the same state But the opinion leaves it in doubt whether the steamboat would be liable for carrying passengers on her own decks between the same points contrary to the laws of the United States on the subject

After substantially admitting that congress has the power to prescribe the law of the highway so far as may be necessary to protect interstate commerce the court say

"The steamer which had these barges in tow being subject to the navigation laws of the United States the mere fact that she took in tow the barges had nothing to do with any interference with the proper navigation of the Ohio river"

In U S vs B & H C Ferry Company (21 Fed Rep 331) it was held that the owners of the vessel engaged in navigating the waters of the Mississippi carrying passengers between two ports in the state of Iowa in excess of the number authorized by a permit issued under § 4466 of the revised statutes are liable for the penalties prescribed in § 4500 of the same

The court held that congress has power to regulate the navigation of vessels on the navigable waters of the United States when engaged exclusively in interstate commerce and that when a steam ferryboat contrary to § 4466 of the revised statutes, carries passengers between ports of the same state in excess of the number allowed in her permit she is guilty of a marine tort and a district court of the United States has jurisdiction of a suit in admiralty against her owners to recover the penalty prescribed by § 4500 of the revised statutes for the same

In the Seneca (1 Biss 571) it was held that a steamboat employed in carrying passengers between two ports of the state of Wisconsin, was not liable to a penalty for not having her hull and boilers inspected under the steamboat act of 1852

In the case of the oyster steamers of Maryland (31 Fed Rep, 763) it was held that three steam vessels belonging to the state of Maryland, not engaged in carrying freight or passengers but used to enforce the state fishery laws in the Chesapeake bay are liable to the penalties prescribed by § 4499 of the revised statutes for failing to have their hulls and boiler inspected by the United States inspectors under §§ 4417 and 4418 of the revised statutes

The court held that the supreme and exclusive control of congress of the navigable waters of the United States might be defeated or rendered less effective for its objects if there were to be recognized a class of vessels privileged to use them without being subject to those provisions which congress determines are required for the safety of all "I am therefore unable to assent to the contention that the fact that the vessels in the present case are not used in commerce but solely for the police purposes of the fishery force prevents congress from having the constitutional power to legislate with regard to them It is not their use but the fact that they navigate the highways of commerce which brings them within the constitutional grant of power and within the language of § 4400 of the act of congress"

In Lord v Steamship Co (102 U S, 541) it was held by the supreme court in the language of the syllabus that "while navigating the high seas, between ports of the same state a vessel of the United States is together with the business in which she is engaged subject to the regulative power of congress"

Mr Chief Justice Waite in speaking for the court said in substance that the venture, while navigating the Pacific ocean, although bound from and to ports in the state of California was without the state and on a highway of nations and therefore "engaged in commerce with foreign nations, and as such she and the business in which she was engaged were subject to the regulating power of congress"

This case falls within the language of the statute (§§ 4399 and 4400 R S) defining what vessels shall be subject to the provisions of title 52

The City of Salem is a vessel propelled by steam On the occasion in question, she was navigating the Wallamet river a navigable water of the United States (Hatch v Wallamet I B Co 7 Saw., 136, Wallamet I B Co v Hatch, 9 Saw, 648), which "is a common highway of commerce and open to general and competitive navigation"

Unless the act of congress so far as the carriage of the passengers in question is concerned, is unconstitutional, the vessel is liable for the penalties prescribed for carrying more passengers than the law allows

In my judgment, the solution of this question depends wholly on whether the regulation limiting the number of passengers which a steamboat may carry over a navigable water of the United States, between ports of the same state, is necessary to maintain this highway of foreign and interstate commerce in a safe and desirable condition, for the use of vessels and persons engaged in the same

The power to make this regulation cannot, in my judgment, be derived from the grant of admiralty jurisdiction The admiralty jurisdiction of the United States is a part of its judicial power and not its legislative It extends "to all cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction" (U S Con Art 3 § 2) And while it does not authorize congress to create admiralty cases yet if in the exercise of its power derived from other clauses of the Constitution it should do so as the power to regulate commerce the grant of judicial power would extend to them and include them because in their nature and constituents they would be cases of admiralty and maritime jurisdiction

Take this case as an illustration The City of Salem is alleged to have violated a law of the United States, to which a penalty is affixed and made a lien on the vessel The act was committed on a navigable water of the United States and the admiralty has jurisdiction of the case to hear and determine it But if congress had not the power to pass the law in question the suit must fail because no wrong was in fact committed

The power to make this regulation must be derived if at all from the power granted to congress "to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several states" U S Con Art 1 § 8

In Gilman vs Philadelphia (3 Wall 724) Mr Justice Swayne speaking for the court said "The power to regulate commerce comprehends the control for that purpose and to the extent necessary of all navigable waters of the United States which are accessible from a state other than those in which they lie For this purpose they are the public property of the nation and subject to all the requisite legislation of congress" And in the case of The Daniel Ball (10 Wall 564) Mr Justice Field speaking for the court said the power to regulate commerce authorizes appropriate legislation for the protection of either interstate or foreign commerce and for that purpose such legislation as will insure the convenient or safe navigation of all navigable waters of the United States whether that legislation consists in regulating the removal of obstructions to their use in prescribing the form and size of vessels employed upon them or in subjecting the vessels to inspection and license in order to insure their proper construction and equipment

That in the case of steamboats the inspections of their hulls and boilers the licensing of their pilots and engineers the carrying of prescribed lights and the giving and answering of prearranged signals when meeting and passing do materially increase the safety and convenience of navigable water considered as a highway of commerce, there is no doubt and therefore there is no question that congress may make regulations on these subjects which are applicable to vessels engaged in intrastate commerce as well as foreign or interstate commerce

The power to regulate the navigation of the waters of the United States being comprehended in the grant of power to regulate commerce not merely as an incident of it congress has power "to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution" such power U S Con Art 1 § 8

In McCulloch v Maryland (4 Wheat 421) Chief Justice Marshall said "Let the end be legitimate let it be within the scope of the constitution, and all means which are appropriate are plainly adapted to that end which are not prohibited, but consist with the letter and spirit of the constitution" And again (Id 423) "But where the law is not prohibited and is really calculated to effect any of the objects intrusted to the government to undertake here to inquire into the degree of its necessity would be to pass the line which circumscribes the judicial department and to tread on legislative ground"

Upon this exposition of the law is this regulation limiting the right of steamboats to carry passengers on a navigable water of the United States to the number prescribed by the certificate of inspection of the local inspectors a necessary and proper regulation of navigation, when such boat is engaged in carrying passengers in such water between different ports of the same state only?

That it is so in at least not so apparent as in the instances mentioned as while it appears there is no doubt on the subject

In what particular a boat carrying more passengers than allowed by her certificate of inspection or special permit affects the safety or convenience of the highway has not been suggested by counsel That the passengers so carried are inconvenienced and may be endangered is likely But the question is how is the safety and convenience of the highway thereby unfavorably affected as to other vessels engaged in interstate or foreign commerce thereon If it was shown that an overloaded boat was more difficult to handle or more likely to become unmanageable or burst her boiler or steam chest the danger resulting to other vessels on the highway would be apparent But there is no proof on this subject and I am not satisfied that it is within the limits of judicial knowledge

One thing is probable If a steamboat is allowed to carry passengers between the ports of any state over the navigable waters of the United States in excess of the number prescribed in its certificate of inspection the boats running between said ports and from or beyond to ports of another state will be compelled to do the same thing or substantially abandon what may be called their way business For any one can understand that a vessel can carry 200 passengers much cheaper per head than another one of the same character and dimensions can carry half the number for The result would be to nullify the regulation or make its enforcement difficult in cases where it is admitted to be legal and presumably beneficial

It may be said that when it is determined that the carrying of passengers between different ports of the same state is not within the power of congress to regulate the state will make proper regulations on the subject But it is not probable that any state regulation on this subject, would be either effective or well enforced

Congress has expressly declared (§§ 4399 and 4400 R S) that this regulation shall apply to steamboats carrying passengers over any part of a navigable water of the United States The regulation when applied to the carriage of passengers between ports of the same state is a beneficial one and its enforcement tends to the safety of human life Without it the excursion boats which on festive occasions ply between ports of the same state would often become floating coffins

If this regulation as applied to vessels engaged in intrastate commerce is really calculated to promote the safety and convenience of interstate and foreign commerce in any appreciable degree the enactment of it is within the discretion of congress And while I am not as certain in my mind on this point as I would like to be I have an impression that I feel more certainly than I can express that the regulation in its effect and operation does materially tend to maintain the safety and convenience of this highway of interstate and foreign commerce—the Wallamet river

On this view of the matter I don't feel warranted, sitting here in the district court in declaring this act of congress unconstitutional It is a proper case to go to the supreme court

The exception is disallowed

COL. JOHN LEE STEPS OUT.

Change in the Superintendency of the Chemawa Indian School.

Management of the Institution—Causes Leading to the Present Incumbent's Resignation Peculiar Position of Employes

Colonel John Lee, for over four years superintendent of the Indian school at Chemawa, sent his resignation to the commissioner of Indian affairs yesterday morning Mr Lee received his appointment October 1, 1885 During his incumbency it is claimed by his friends, that the school has been conducted with that judgment and good management that has made it one of the most efficient Indian schools in the country

When Colonel Lee assumed management, the school, it is asserted, presented but little of the appearance it does to-day At that time there were but few improvements on the place There was but little land cleared and only limited accommodations for the scholars

Since that time many changes have been made and the person who has not visited the institution since its establishment would now hardly recognize it as being the same school

Colonel Lee says that the young men of the school have cleared up at least 100 acres of land, so that now a well kept farm is run in connection with the other industrial departments Ten acres of this land have been planted with fruit trees, making a fine little orchard Not content with the limited government grounds on which the school is located an additional eighty-five acre tract has been bought adjoining the school on the east This piece of land has been bought by the students themselves through hard labor and is deeded to the government something never before done or even attempted by any other Indian school He claims that in every way the Indian school is now in a flourishing and prosperous condition

WHY HE RESIGNED

"The causes which led me to take the step in tendering my resignation as superintendent of this school have been existing for some time" said Colonel Lee

About a year ago, Colonel Lee says, a contending faction, headed by one of the teachers and supplemented by several employes of the school, organized for the purpose of having him deposed from office They carried on this fight with such determination that it became necessary for him to make several changes in the management of the school The superintendent claims that he was so harassed by this faction that were striving to obtain control of the school that the efficiency of its discipline and curriculum were seriously interfered with Mr Lee could not run the institution as he desired and his scholars requested him to make several removals

On the 1st of October L. S Rodgers was suspended, and John Gray received a peremptory discharge These changes were made for cause and at the earnest request of the scholars This action on the part of the superintendent was severely criticised and gave rise to still more complicated difficulties The law relating to the management of Indian schools has been so amended as to take away all the powers of a superintendent to hire help, or discharge employes, and vest these rights in the Indian commission at Washington

Colonel Lee's action in making these changes was construed as illegal, and the teachers employed in the place of those relieved were considered as holding their positions under protest In this state of affairs Mr Lee thought it best to step out, so yesterday morning he sent in his resignation Being thus handicapped, both by the contention of an outside faction, and the laws divesting him of his rights in the management of the school, Mr Lee says he considered it no longer possible to conduct the school with the efficiency insured only by a harmonious co-operation of all parties interested in its management either directly or indirectly

"I now step out," said Colonel Lee, "with the consolation of having done my best to conduct the school as such an institution should be, and with the confidence and kind feeling of every scholar in the school

WHAT THE INDIAN COMMISSIONER SAYS

The following taken from the last report of the commissioner of Indian affairs throws some light on the present status of Indian school employes

In this communication attention may be called to an existing doubt of the legality of the authority under which most of the school employes are now serving On June 22, 1888 the secretary in pursuance of his authority in such matters directed that all the positions then existing in the Indian schools should be continued, first, during the month of July, 1888, or second until other positions were authorized, or, third until further orders Under this authority the school positions referred to have been continued until the present time, and most of the employes who on June 30 occupied them still occupy them

That these positions were continued in a legal manner is clear, but that the employes who have remained in them without appointment by the superintendent of Indian schools have been since June 30, legal occupants is not clear The reason for this doubt may be briefly stated Prior to June 30, 1888, the secretary of the interior approved and promulgated among two other regulations for the government of the Indian service, viz Regulations declaring that all authority to employ labor emanates from the secretary of the interior and expires with the fiscal year and regulations 221 declaring that since the service of all employes terminates with the end of each fiscal year, it will be necessary after the beginning of each fiscal year to renominate those employes whom it is desired to retain in the positions occupied by them in the year preceding provided the authority for such positions has been renewed

It thus appears that while the authority for the positions which has existed during the fiscal year of 1877-88 was renewed on June 29 the employment of all the persons who were on June 30 occupying those positions was terminated at the end of that day—the end of the fiscal year—by the operations of regulations 54 and 224 which were then and are still in full force and effect. Acting upon reasoning like this it is probable that the accounting officers of the treasury will hold First, that all the positions renewed by the authority of the secretary were vacant on July 1 second, that authority to fill them was on July 1 vested in the superintendent of Indian schools, and on and after that date this authority could have been exercised by no other officers third that the office of superintendent was vacant until October 29 and consequently no legal employment of any school employe could have been made between June 30 and October 29 fourth, that therefore all persons who after June 30 and until they were appointed by the superintendent, with the approval of the secretary, occupied the school positions renewed by the secretary's authority of June 29, were illegal occupants thereof

A dispatch has been received making the announcement that Mr Lee's successor has already received his appointment

SECURING A LARGER CITY PARK

A Correspondent Offers Some Suggestions on the Subject, Which Are Commented Upon

PORTLAND Feb 1 1889

To THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

On a first visit to the city park made lately I was much impressed with the excellent natural requisites that exist there for the making of an attractive public park and I was somewhat surprised to learn that the city had made no effort to secure a greater area of land in this suitable locality for establishing a place that will add so much to the attractions of the city, and in the future, to the healthfulness of its inhabitants

The principal cities of the United States secure and devote to this purpose hundreds of acres and it is to be feared that by delay Portland will be compelled at some time in the future to pay dearly for the land that can now be had at a nominal price Besides this the land secured for purposes of this kind is much more desirable when taken in rugged state and before it has been prepared for residence purposes

Should not the attention of the authorities be urged toward this subject which is soon to be of so considerable importance M

[Probably his impressions in regard to the city park will be increased and strengthened with subsequent visits His ideas in regard to securing a greater area of land are eminently correct Still it may be said that while no special effort has been made to secure a large park the matter has not altogether escaped the attention of our citizens and city officials An effort was made by Mayor DeLashmutt a short time since to have an amendment added to those proposed for the city charter to allow of an indebtedness of $100,000 being incurred to purchase a tract of land for a park and beautify it The amendment was however omitted on the ground that as the cities would in all probability soon be consolidated and there would then be more land within the limits it would be better to wait till that time before buying a park especially as it is held by some that the city cannot hold land outside of its own limits A park, like everything else needed by Portland, will come in time

FOUR IRON SHIPS IN PORT.

What the Bement, Brenhilda, Auguste and Archer are Doing

Large Shipments of Wheat to England Comfortable Quarters—The Fishing Schooner to be Launched To-day

There are now four iron ships in this port the Auguste Archer Brenhilda and [illegible] Bement

It is not often that so many ships of this description at any one time are lying at a single port in the Northwest There are frequently numerous smaller craft at Portland but with the exception of the Archer which is nevertheless of good size ships of such magnificent proportions as the other three which were mentioned are rarely seen taking on cargo in sight of each other that is to say north of San Francisco

The Brenhilda is now discharging the remainder of her coal at the foot of D street and will soon complete her cargo, of which she has a portion already

An OREGONIAN reporter visited the wheat docks yesterday afternoon, where he remained for a short time, listening to accounts of the vicissitudes of a sailor's life related by Messrs Smith Matzen and Hals [illegible] first officers [illegible] respectively of the ships the Auguste Archer and Bement

The Auguste is now at Columbia dock No 1 loading with wheat This is the ship which took a cargo of coal and coke from Newcastle England to Santa Rosalia California on her last trip and came from the latter place to Portland with stone ballast When loaded she will have 2000 tons of wheat on board After 600 tons are taken on board she will be moved down the river 200 feet and the rest of the ballast will be discharged She will then be moved back to her original position and the cargo completed The large rocks that have been brought here by this ship are quite valuable for building purposes and will probably be utilized extensively for that business Officer Smith was of the opinion that they would be ready to sail within eleven days if the assurance of a sufficient quantity of wheat being on hand proved to be correct The tallyman considered there would be no difficulty in supplying the demand of the three ships immediately The Auguste will go to Falmouth England, for orders The interior construction of this ship deviates to a great measure from that of any of many other vessels which have ever been to Portland On going into her forward cabin and examining the different apartments which open into it, one is surprised at the capaciousness of the rooms Instead of the nine or ten panels that surround the sides of the cabin being as they generally are doors opening into unique little storage closets and comfortable officers' quarters, they are exactly what they appear to be, the siding that partitions off the smaller cabins from the main one There is only one door each for both the port and starboard sides of the forward cabin The one on the starboard side opens into a room 17x7 extending the full length of the officers' dining room or forward cabin It has the appearance of most extravagant luxury, taking into consideration the limited room that must necessarily exist upon any ocean craft This idea is somewhat dispelled when in crossing the cabin to the other side is found another room of almost equal dimensions The after cabin with the captain's apartments and various store rooms opening into it exhibits the same degree of space The only rooms in this part of the ship that seem cramped in the least are occupied by the first and second mates, and which are situated to the right and left of the rather long hall leading from the forward cabin to the main deck Even these quarters are longer by a third than the mates' rooms of any ships in port without it is the Brenhilda

Coming out on deck another feature of convenience which attracts one's attention is the manner in which the quarter deck is reached The rule seems to be to have the people [illegible] across the after part of ships, but in this case a passageway at least three feet and a half wide is left at each side thereby doing away with the method of climbing over the poop deck every time one wishes to go to the wheel This also lends the appearance of greater height to the aft cabins The ship has but two decks, while even her rigging is similar to that of the Bement Brenhilda and Archer [illegible] She also has double gallant yards on the main top sails At the time of the reporter's visit the crew of twenty men were engaged in rapidly stowing the sacks of wheat in the hold and working with an alacrity that showed much experience

A few hundred feet south of the Auguste is the Archer with the S Bement towering above and attached to her port side The Archer came here seventeen days ago with a general cargo from Liverpool to the consignees Wilson & Meyer of this city She is also at Greenwich dock and will commence this morning in taking in her cargo of 1100 tons of wheat In referring to the size of the crew First Mate Matzen said

"We only have fourteen [illegible] left [illegible] knows only themselves I guess they [illegible] tons to haul [illegible]

"Do you wish their places filled?"

"No we do not I want it distinctly understood that $87 [illegible] will never be paid for any sailor on board of this ship We know what we are doing and if necessary the second mate and myself will undertake to handle her sails before an extortion will succeed

The U S Bement will take in her 1,000 tons of wheat here at the same time the Archer is loading As there is not room for both to be at the wharf an arrangement will be made by which the sacks can be conducted from the upper floor of the dock across the Archer to the hatches of the Bement This can easily be done as the latter ship is much the larger The Columbia and Greenwich dock will present a busy appearance the next few days

The U S Bement finished unloading [illegible] and came over to the Greenwich dock Monday morning to take in her new cargo The natural curiosity which was aroused when the Bement first entered port by the description and the history of her adventuresome voyage from New York around the Horn which was given in THE OREGONIAN has caused a great number of persons to visit the beautiful ship Captain Franck says the crowd was never so large as last Sunday The day being unusually fine a continuous stream of Portlanders kept pouring over the sides of the ship At least 1000 persons were on deck at different times during the afternoon alone The captain is perfectly willing that they should come notwithstanding the trouble he is put to

The steam schooner of the Yaquina Deep Sea Fishing company will be launched this forenoon Dr George H Chance received a telegram yesterday to that effect and also that the supplies from Sutton & Beebe were awaited as everything was in readiness for her to proceed to San Francisco to get her machinery

The steamer Oregon crossed out over the bar at 7:20 A. M. yesterday

PORTLAND VIEWED FROM THE WEST

Wonderful Growth of the City in That Direction Impressions of a Correspondent

"An old resident of Portland has this to say about a recent tramp made along the hills to the west of the city

"Like a good many others who have trodden a beaten path for years I became oblivious of the fact that Portland and vicinity are growing and what is more the growth is of a substantial character I was more than convinced of this last Sunday in taking a big tramp over the hills commencing at Portland Heights, passing the Park thence west a [illegible] the King [illegible] down past the [illegible] to Ninth street and through Nob Hill

"Accustomed to leaving my home and making a bee line for the office every day I had continued to forget that the town was growing on its outskirts and after years of this sort of life I concluded to see what was going on in the western end of Portland Sunday afternoon was devoted to the task of doing the undiscovered [illegible] country On the Heights there is a wonderful change only to be changed beyond recognition the moment something tangible in the way of a cable road is made apparent

"In 1887 when McCaffrey and his associates inaugurated the scheme real estate went up a hundred per cent or more and it has been going up ever since in anticipation, which it is fervently hoped will be realized in the next thirty days Anyone who has lived in San Francisco will tell you what the cable roads accomplished on the hills and beyond and there was nothing but sand hills to the right and left extending for miles north and south and out to the beach Here it is cultivated soil in the main And yet there are croakers who see no future for a cable road On the west a cable road through the park and beyond, and a second one back of the [illegible] will open to settlement the [illegible] hills now covered with timber, which alone is better than sand Another will extend to the north along the ridge

"But I am digressing I rove in the [illegible] from the heights and the hills back of the park and look down more directly upon the [illegible] section that which seems to extend for miles in some spots more thickly than others all moving, what appears one great city This is the impression one forms from the altitude beyond to the west Descending to Twenty third street and taking K street as the center of Nob hill, an old timer begins to think for a while An occasional landmark satisfies him that he is still in Portland but old landmarks are scarce out that way

"In fact it seems like a new town, reminding one somewhat of Oakland and towns with progressive ideas The houses are of an entirely different character than those we have been accustomed to see, and being so numerous, outnumbering the old ones a hundred to one it naturally creates a peculiar impression on a person who becomes familiar to old style In the old settled portion houses of the class so general in Nob hill are so rarely seen that the observer is more likely to pass them by without giving special attention The streets are being opened to the hills and there they stop the land beyond being owned in large parcels and beautified agreeable to the owner's fancy

"A Sunday walk through Nob hill and on the hills named herein, is worth dollars to those who will spend a few hours' time in this way And it may be added with satisfaction that nine tenths of the dwellings in the above districts are owned by the occupants thereof and healthy showing, and such as to insure most attractive neighborhoods"

FUNDS FOR ADVERTISING,

Needed by the Immigration Board for the Ensuing Year

Donation by R. L. Polk & Co Letter from Mrs Frank Leslie—Synopsis of Phamplet Showing the Aid Fund

AN OREGONIAN reporter on entering the board of immigration rooms yesterday afternoon was accosted by the secretary with the remark

"I want you to see our valuable addition to the ways of a library through the courtesy of R. L. Polk & Co we have acquired an almost indispensable acquisition We have been presented with fourteen directories, embracing the leading states and cities in the Union"

The books present quite large and conspicuous [illegible] of the long shelves in the bookcase which Mr Struble has at his disposal The secretary was assured that hence [illegible] this sort was [illegible] appreciated

LETTER FROM MRS FRANK LESLIE

In response to the invitation extended by the board to Mrs Frank Leslie, that lady has written the following

NEW YORK Feb 1889

DEAR SIR—I cannot more than [illegible] invitation to visit Portland during my proposed visit to the Pacific coast is at hand. [illegible] express my heartfelt appreciation [illegible] which inspired it, [illegible] whether I can avail myself of it I cannot now determine [illegible] the time to do so I shall certainly give myself the pleasure of accepting the hospitality of your board and of seeing with my own eyes the attractions of your wonderful city Meantime with a thousand thanks, permit me to remain very truly yours

ADVERTISING PORTLAND

The reporter was shown a copy of the Leslie's Leader dated Sunday February 3 1889, in which appeared a quarter page advertisement of Portland and vicinity The ad occupied a very conspicuous place in the paper and was couched in language setting forth our resources to the best possible advantage

A [illegible] PAMPHLET

The following is a synopsis of the pamphlet lately printed by the board and circulated in great numbers throughout the city

With the first day of April next the first year of this board as at present constituted comes to an end, and on that day all but a small portion of the subscriptions to the immigration fund expire The demand for pamphlets, maps and other printed descriptive matter has been so large and the field for profitable newspaper advertising has been so wide that we have not been able to meet the one or all the other to anything like the full extent, with the limited funds at our disposal More money is needed to carry on the work of advertising The amount raised has been $2,000 which will have been expended with the close of the year Accounts of these receipts and expenditures have been made month by month

[illegible] OF ADVERTISING

Though the amount raised appears to be large and was by us in the outset regarded as sufficient a year's experience has taught us that to do the work which could be done with profit and productive of the very best results and to do it with as great economy as possible an annual expenditure of many times the amount is necessary

It is no easy matter to reach 60,000,000 people to send to each one a pamphlet is utterly impracticable not only because not having the addresses you do not know how to reach them but also for the reason that to do so would cost millions of dollars After one year's experience we are convinced that the only method at all practicable is by advertising to as large an extent as possible in newspapers circulating in the districts which you want to reach, thus finding those who are interested in the search for new homes to send for your descriptive pamphlets, and to keep your descriptive pamphlets at those places where intending emigrants generally apply for information to be given out on application, that is at the different railroad offices of the roads interested in the travel to your section and at such offices as you may be able to establish [illegible] rates of fare

But a careful investigation shows the cost of keeping these channels supplied [illegible] Australia For the country there are some [illegible] or more newspapers in which a small standing advertisement would do very effective work This would cost per year [illegible] about $300 per paper or $18,000 [illegible] twice a month [illegible] With the $3000 at our disposal [illegible] but one [illegible] four advertisements of the city [illegible] travel [illegible]

[illegible]

If you will contrast the present condition of affairs with that which existed a year ago you will find that at that time all the travel was to western Washington territory or southern California The prime and only object of this work is to secure a good healthy and steady increase to the population of both country and city immigration This increase of population means a field for the consumption of manufactured articles and the establishment of factories a profitable business for additional miles of railroads As to the amount to be raised that rests entirely with the citizens who are to contribute the funds and the amount which might be expended with profit is so large, that it is almost beyond the bounds of possibility that the full amount can be raised which could be used in the work

We also submit that the coming year a large and fully illustrated pamphlet of the city should be issued

[illegible] MAY AID THE WORK

There is some [illegible] that the state will to some extent contribute towards this work but there is no possibility that it will be more than a partial supply of what is demanded for the country at large and we think there can be but one opinion that this city which is the metropolis and prospers in exact proportion as the country increases in population and wealth owes it to itself not only to make itself known but to do what is lacking in state aid towards filling up the country

SOLICITING SUBSCRIPTIONS

The work of soliciting subscriptions will commence at once but will of necessity occupy some time In taking these subscriptions the board has no other purpose to serve than the public good, in which you are as much interested as any member of the board, and we ask you kindly to meet our efforts in this behalf in the spirit in which they are made, and to contribute to the fund to as great an extent as you feel your interests demand and your means will warrant

SO THE BILL WAS IGNORED.

Morris Johnson and Agnes Woodward Have Both Been Discharged.

Damage Case—Tried for His Life—Time Granted—Charged With Seduction Other Court Notes

The alleged Cunningham mysterious murder case has gone to the wall, the grand jury having ignored the bill against Morris Johnson and Agnes Woodward, after having made an investigation of the matter Yesterday Morris Johnson and Agnes Woodward were released from custody But Miss Woodward was held in $150 bonds promptly furnished by a local bartender for keeping a house of ill fame Agnes stated to an OREGONIAN reporter that she should plead guilty and pay her fine

What disposition will be made of the woman Etta Kroll whose trumped up story was poured into the ears of credulous would be detectives have [illegible] the county so much money is not known It is not Mr Wood's first [illegible] of the kind, and with the apprehension of criminals is [illegible] desired it would seem advisable for the public good that he should in future leave such matters to persons of more discretion and judgment The result in this case was evident from the start to all who had knowledge of such matters and only served to pose as a heavy clown [illegible] or to go gunning around the country at the public expense and had anyone to undertake such a foolish piece of business [illegible] to give away their business and all they know, and a great deal more to be published all over the country will never make successful detectives There are many avenues of usefulness open to such individuals to build cellars to dig, there are still tracts in the mountains to which [illegible] may [illegible] in this state [illegible] remain large tracts of land lying idle and unproductive
